1. The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions. It emphasizes that this is crucial for the company's financial health and for providing reliable information to stakeholders.

2. The second part of the document outlines the specific procedures for recording transactions. It details the steps from initial entry to final review, ensuring that all necessary information is captured and verified.

3. The third part of the document addresses the role of the accounting department in this process. It highlights the need for clear communication and collaboration between different departments to ensure the accuracy and completeness of the records.

4. The fourth part of the document discusses the importance of regular audits and reviews. It explains how these activities help to identify any discrepancies or errors and ensure that the records are up-to-date and accurate.

5. The fifth part of the document provides a summary of the key points discussed and offers some final thoughts on the importance of maintaining accurate records. It concludes by stating that this is a fundamental aspect of good financial management.

PREFACE.

THIS volume contains the majority of the best Songs, by deceased poets and musicians, of Great Britain and Ireland. That it has been possible to compress anything answering to this description into so small a compass is due to a variety of causes, of which deficiency of material whence to choose has assuredly not been one. But, the best things, in every kind of art, are necessarily few. The field of choice, too, has been limited in the present instance to pieces which fully answer to the popular idea of a song—a thing, the first condition or qualification of which is that it can be sung, and to which, therefore, apt notes are as essential and as important as apt words. Moreover, it was desirable that the collection should consist exclusively of National songs—songs which, through their truth to nature, their felicity of expression, and the operation of time, have sunk “deeper than did ever plummet sound” into the hearts of the people among whom they have sprung up and circulated.

The presentation of these songs without accompaniment, has been dictated not merely by want of space, but by the desire to present them in their original forms. For, in almost every case, the tune is the only original part of the music of a national song; the addition even of a bass having been generally made by a later hand—not always guided by a sympathetic spirit.

In thus bringing together the Songs of Great Britain and Ireland, an opportunity will be afforded both for confirming a just impression in respect to them, and also for removing a false one ;—by showing, on the one hand, that, as a body, they will not suffer by comparison with those of any other nation—perhaps even with those of all other nations put together,—on the other, that the English, as well as the Scottish, the Welsh, and the Irish, have national melodies—a truth which, old and irrefragable as it may be to those who have looked into the matter, will be altogether new to, and require confirmation with, those who have not. Some excuse for this may have existed, up to a comparatively recent time, in the absence of any authentic and accessible body of evidence in relation to English melody ; but the labours of Mr. Chappell have now put this within reach of every candid inquirer, and establish beyond doubt the priority as well as the extent of our claims as a nation of song-makers.

In his splendid and exhaustive collection,* Mr. Chappell has included not only the majority of those English songs and tunes “of the olden time” which are still current and popular, but many others that, wanting a chronicler or an interpreter, had ceased, or would soon have ceased, to be so. Many a treasure, too, long lost to eye and ear in the folds of ancient manuscripts, or veiled under obsolete and repulsive notations, will be found in it :—all these accompanied and enriched by annotations and illustrations, not more remarkable for their number than for their accuracy and interest.

Indeed, but for Mr. Chappell's, a book like the following would have demanded an amount of research which must have placed many years between its projection and its publication. Nor, without his encouragement, could the Editor have ventured to avail himself so often of the results of Mr. Chappell's researches, as this book will show he has done. But an announcement of the plan of it, submitted by the Editor to Mr. Chappell before he undertook to carry it into effect, was met by that gentleman, not merely with a prompt and unconditional permission to use, or extract from, his publications to any extent, but by an offer of co-operation of any other kind that might be needed.

Copious as were the resources thus liberally opened to the Editor, it will be seen that they were not the only ones to which he has had access, and occasion to resort. Not to say that much in Mr. Chappell's work is, as a very condition of its existence as national melody, familiar even "as household words," some, if not many, songs of much interest have not found their way into it,—simply because no book can contain everything. The authorities for these as well as all other pieces, whether of words or music, contained in this volume are specified at the foot of each; more detailed information, where needed, being given in the concluding notes.

Though nothing that can be compared with the research and critical acumen of Mr. Chappell has been brought to bear upon it, Scottish song has long been, to the natives of Scotland, an object of far greater pride and attention than has English song to our own countrymen. Collections of Scottish melodies are both numerous and copious,—too copious in many instances; since they include both a good deal hardly worthy of preservation, and also not a little the nationality of which (always doubtful) more careful inquiry must have resulted in assigning to South Britain or Ireland. That not a few so-called Scottish melodies are possibly or certainly Irish has been long known to, and admitted by, the Scotch themselves; but that the terms Northern, and even Scottish, have often been applied to their own songs by the English, and that a considerable number of pieces, which have found their way into Scottish collections, had been in print as well as in large circulation in England long before (though it might be with slight variations, not of structure, but of surface), are truths, the demonstration of which we owe to Mr. Chappell. Not that the Scotch alone have profited in this way. It is certain also that many favourite Irish melodies have either been pieced together from fragments of English material, or stolen ready made.

These appropriations, however, of their neighbours' goods, admitted in full, both Ireland and (still more) Scotland have good cause for rejoicing in their lyrical wealth. To the perfection of a song the words and the notes must contribute in an equal degree; and these must be not merely excellent in themselves, but accordant with each other. The conditions of a song's existence are only thoroughly fulfilled where “ — music and sweet poesy agree,

As needs they must—the sister and the brother.”

In the songs of no people is this agreement more perfect than, or so frequent as, in the Scottish. The contributions of Burns alone to the minstrelsy of his country would entitle Scotland to a high—perhaps to the highest—place among song-making peoples. And even Burns, though of unequalled altitude, is but as the highest peak in the mountain-chain which leads up to it, guards and buttresses it, on all sides. He is facile princeps, no doubt, but his compeers are royal and many.

In comparison with Scottish, Irish minstrelsy appears, of necessity, under great disadvantages—to us. The native poet-musicians of Ireland are unintelligible to the great mass by whom the English language and its varieties are spoken. And, within the memories of men living, no Anglo-Irish poet had taken a place for a moment to be compared with that of Burns, in connexion with the melodies of his own country. The condition of Wales has been precisely similar, and from the same cause. Her vocal melodies have been long before the world, in considerable numbers, but of necessity also divorced from the words to which they were originally allied. Indeed, before the very recent publication of Mr. Thomas's work,* nothing like a collection of Welsh Melodies, interpreted and adorned by the addition of English words, of appropriate character, had been attempted. The courtesy of Mr. Thomas's publishers has enabled the Editor to give some specimens of Welsh songs, the beauty and interest of which will, no doubt, lead musical readers to the inspection and study of the entire collection from which they are taken.

To the English, Scottish, Welsh, and Irish songs specified in the title-page, have been added a few American. In admitting them a rule excluding contemporary songs has been violated. Everything, however, in America comes quickly to maturity, and the flavour which, in the Old World, can be given to national melody only by age, seems to be communicable in the New, through other agencies. Certain it is that a considerable number of American songs which have taken strong hold, not only of America, but of Great Britain, cannot possibly number even the fewest years needed for the enrolment of any British composition among our national songs.

To what extent any considerable number of ancient melodies—of whatever nation—are intact; with how much of the detail, or even of the design, of their authors about them, they have come down to us, is a question which, however interesting, it is not likely there will ever be any means of answering satisfactorily. Many of the most ancient tunes must be the production of artists to whom the use of musical symbols was either unfamiliar or altogether unknown, and whose inspirations, caught up “by ear” have been passed on, from voice to voice, and from instrument to instrument, for long periods of time, before their forms were verified in the written note. Those whose only means of tradition are oral, have, no doubt, very retentive memories; but, admitting this to the fullest extent, variations innumerable, and more or less great, both in words and notes, must, in the course of frequent repetitions of the same songs, make their way into them. If we consider, too, the extent to which almost every performer impresses what he performs with his own individuality, we shall hesitate to set much store by the authenticity, whatever we may think of the beauty, of many of those versions of old melodies, which have been taken down, at such cost and trouble, by musical antiquarians, from the lips of “the oldest inhabitants” of out-of-the-way places.

The assignment of dates to national melodies on internal evidence—and we have often no other to guide us—is attended with difficulties altogether special. An average musical composition can as little conceal its age as an average human being. A thousand peculiarities in its plan and details will betray to an experienced eye or ear the approximate time, and often even place, of its production. But tunes, pure and simple, are the waifs and strays of musical creation—the offspring of genius often not amenable to, often not cognizant of, musical law, to whose lot it has not unfrequently fallen to anticipate modes of operations not yet sanctioned by the orthodox practitioner. That musical history furnishes many instances of this is certain; melodies, the dates of which are indisputable, being found cast in forms—technically, in a tonality—not generally accepted and used till many years after their composition. The Editor has not succeeded in ascertaining on what evidence so high an antiquity is assigned to certain tunes in many Scottish, Welsh, and Irish collections. That the stocks on which some of them have been grafted are ancient is probable; or (to change the metaphor) that the work handed down to us may enclose, or may have altogether replaced, another of very distant date, is neither impossible nor improbable; but in these, as in too many other instances, restoration and repair have destroyed a monument, and its transformation has been so thorough, that the original artificer might fail to find any of his own work left in it.

The value and interest, to the musical reader, of a collection like the following consist greatly in the opportunity it affords of comparing, not merely one melody with another, but any set of national melodies with any other—the English with the Irish, the Irish with the Welsh, and so on. The songs of a people might be expected, in some marked way, to reveal its character and peculiarities. That from their literary part, the words, something in respect of these might, in the absence of all other knowledge, be predicated is certain; but that from their musical part, the notes—essentially so vague, so unequal to clear expression of any but a few powerful affections of the mind—any equal amount of knowledge, or any knowledge whatever, of the people among whom they have grown up, could be obtained, must be considered extremely doubtful.

It remains only for the Editor to name here the musical works to which he has had most frequent occasion to refer. These are, for the English tunes, Chappell's Popular Music of the Olden Time; for the Scottish, Thomson's Scottish Songs; for the Welsh, Thomas's Welsh Melodies; and for the Irish, Bunting's Ancient Music of Ireland. Considerable discrepancies exist between many of the airs in the latter work and those bearing the same names in Moore's Irish Melodies: in every instance the version of Bunting has been adopted in preference to that of Moore, as being always the more ancient, and generally the more beautiful. Thus, for the first time, many of these magnificent lyrics will be found in connexion with the airs by which they were professedly inspired.

PASTIME WITH GOOD COMPANY

Andante

Pastime with good com - pany I love, and shall until I die ; Grudge who will, but none deny, So God be pleas'd, this life will I For my pastance, Hunt, sing and dance; My heart is set, All goodly sport, To my comfort, Who shall me let?

Youth will needs have dalliance,
 Of good or ill some pastance ;
 Company me thinketh the best
 All thoughts & fantasies to digest.

For idleness
 Is chief mistress
 Of vices all :
 Then who can say
 But pass the day
 Is best of all ?

Company with honesty
 Is virtue ; and vice to flee.
 Company is good or ill,
 But every man hath his free will.

The best I sue,
 The worst eschew :
 My mind shall be
 Virtue to use,
 Vice to refuse,
 I shall use me.

III

AH! THE SYGHES THAT COME FRO' MY HEART

Andantino

Ah! the syghes that come fro' my heart, They grieve me passing sore; Syth I must fro' my love de-part, Fare well my joye for ever - more

The musical score consists of three staves. The first staff is in treble clef with a key signature of one flat (B-flat) and a common time signature (C). It contains the first line of the melody. The second staff continues the melody and includes a slur under the words 'sore; Syth'. The third staff is in bass clef with a key signature of one flat and contains the final line of the melody, ending with a long dotted line.

Oft to me with her goodly face,
She was wont to cast an eye;
And now absence to me in place!
Alas! for woe I die, I die!

I was wont her to behold,
And take in armes twain;
And now with syghes manifold,
Farewell my joy and welcome pain!

Ah! me think that should I yet,
As would to God that I might;
There would no joys compare with it
Unto my heart, to make it light.

IV

IT WAS A MAID OF MY COUNTRY

Allegretto

It was a maid of my country, As she came by a hawthorn tree, As full of flow'rs as might be seen, She marvell'd to see the tree so green ; At last she asked of the tree, How came this freshness unto thee, And ev'ry branch so fair and clean ? I marvel that you grow so green.

The tree made answer by and by,
 I have cause to grow triumphantly,
 The sweetest dew that ever be seen,
 Doth fall upon me to keep me green.

Yea, quoth the maid, but when you grow
You stand at hand at ev'ry blow,
Of every man for to be seen,
I marvel that you grow so green.

Though many one take flowers from me,
And many a branch out of my tree ;
I have such store they will not be seen,
For more and more my twigs grow green.
But how, an they chance to cut thee down,
And carry thy branches into the town ?
Then they will never more be seen
To grow again so fresh and green.

Though that you do it is no boot,
Although they cut me to the root,
Next year again I will be seen
To bud my branches fresh and green.
And you, fair maid, cannot do so ;
For " when your beauty once does go "
Then will it never more be seen,
As I with my branches can grow green.

The maid with that began to blush,
And turn'd her from the hawthorn bush ;
She thought herself so fair and clean,
Her beauty still would ever grow green.

* * * * *

But after this never I could hear,
Of this fair maiden anywhere,
That ever she was in forest seen
To talk again with hawthorn green.

THE HUNT IS UP

Vivace

The hunt is up, the hunt is up, And it is well nigh day; And Harry our King is gone hunting, To bring his deer to bay.

The east is bright with morning light,
And darkness it is fled,
And the merry horn wakes up the morn
To leave his idle bed.

Behold the skies with golden dyes
Are glowing all around;
The grass is green, and so are the trees
All laughing at the sound.

The horses snort to be at the sport,
The dogs are running free,
The woods rejoice at the merry noise
Of hey tantara tee ree!

The sun is glad to see us clad
All in our lusty green,
And smiles in the sky as he riseth high
To see and to be seen.

Awake all men, I say again,
Be merry as you may;
For Harry our king is gone hunting,
To bring his deer to bay.

WE BE SOLDIERS THREE

We be soldiers three Pardona moy, je vous an pree; Lately come forth of the Low Countrie, With never a penny of money.

Here, good fellow, I drink to thee,
Pardona moy, je vous an pree;
 To all good fellows, wherever they be,
 With never a penny of money.

And he that will not pledge me thus,
Pardona moy, je vous an pree;
 Pays for the shot, whatever it is,
 With never a penny of money.

Charge it again, boy, charge it again,
Pardona moy, je vous an pree;
 As long as there is any ink in thy pen,
 With never a penny of money.

WHO'S THE FOOL NOW

Martin said to his man, Fie! man, Fie! O

Martin said to his man, Who's the fool now?

Martin said to his man, Fill thou the cup and I the can;

Thou hast well drunken, man; Who's the fool now?

I saw the man in the moon ;
Fie! man, fie!

I saw the man in the moon ;
Who's the fool now?

I saw the man in the moon
Clouting of St. Peter's shoon ;
Thou hast well drunken, man ;
Who's the fool now?

I saw a goose ring a hog ;
Fie! man, fie!

I saw a goose ring a hog ;
Who's the fool now?

I saw a goose ring a hog,
And a snail bite a dog ;
Thou hast well drunken, man ;
Who's the fool now?

I saw a hare chase a hound ;
Fie! man, fie!

I saw a hare chase a hound ;
Who's the fool now?

I saw a hare chase a hound
Twenty miles above the ground ;
Thou hast well drunken, man ;
Who's the fool now?

I saw a mouse catch a cat ;
Fie! man, fie!

I saw a mouse catch a cat ;
Who's the fool now?

I saw a mouse catch a cat,
And the cheese eat the rat ;
Thou hast well drunken, man ;
Who's the fool now?

VIII

WE BE THREE POOR MARINERS

Moderato

We be three poor mariners, New - ly come from the seas ; We spend our lives in jeopardy, While others live in ease. Shall we go dance the round, the round, the round ? Shall we go dance the round, the round, the round ? And he that is a bully boy, Come pledge me on this ground, a ground, a ground.

We care not for those martial men

That do our states disdain ;

But we care for the merchantmen

Who do our states maintain.

To them we dance this round, around, around,

To them we dance this round, around, around ;

And he that is a bully boy,

Come pledge me on this ground, a ground, a ground.

IX

THE FROG WOULD A-WOOING RIDE

Andante

It was the frog in the well, Hum - ble dum, hum - ble dum, And the merry mouse in the mill,
 tweedle, tweedle, twino.

The frog would a-woosing ride,
 Humble dum, humble dum,
 Sword and buckler by his side,
 Tweedle, tweedle, twino.

When upon his high horse set,
 Humble dum, humble dum,
 His boots they shone as black as jet
 Tweedle, tweedle, twino.

When he came to the merry mill pin,
 Lady Mouse beene you within?
 Then came out the dusty mouse,
 I am lady of this house;

Hast thou any mind of me?
 I have e'en great mind of thee.
 Who shall this marriage make?
 Our lord, which is the rat.

What shall we have to our supper?
 Three beans in a pound of butter.
 But, when supper they were at,
 The frog, the mouse, and e'en the rat,

Then came in Tib, our cat,
 And caught the mouse e'en by the back,
 Then did they separate :
 The frog leapt on the floor so flat ;

Then came in Dick, our drake,
 And drew the frog e'en to the lake,
 The rat he ran up the wall,
 And so the company parted all.

GOODMORROW, 'TIS ST. VALENTINE'S DAY

Allegretto

Good mor-row, 'tis St. Valentine's day, All in the morning time And I a maid at your window, To be your Valen - tine.

The musical score is written on a single treble clef staff with a key signature of two sharps (F# and C#) and a 6/8 time signature. The melody consists of eighth and sixteenth notes, with some rests. The lyrics are placed below the notes, with hyphens indicating syllables that span across two notes.

SIR SIMON DE MONTFORT

Moderato

Sir Simon de Montfort my subject shall bee; Once chief of all the great barons was hee, Yet fortune so cruelle this lorde did a - base, Now lost and for-got-ten are hee and his race.

When the barons in armes did King Henrye oppose,
 Sir Simon de Montfort their leader they chose;
 A leader of courage undaunted was hee,
 And oft-times he made their enemies flee.

At length in the battle on Eveshame Plaine
 The barons were routed and Montfort was slaine;
 Most fatall that battel did prove unto thee,
 Though thou wast not born then, my prettye Bessie!

Along with the nobles that fell at that tyde,
 His eldest son Henrye, who fought by his side,
 Was felde by a blowe he receivde in the fight!
 A blow that deprivde him for ever of sight.

Among the dead bodyes all lifeless he laye,
Till evening drew on of the following daye,
When by a young ladye discoverd was hee ;
And this was thy mother, my prettye Bessie.

A baron's faire daughter stept forth in the night,
To search for her father, who fell in the fight,
And seeing young Montfort, where gasping he laye,
Was moved with pitye and brought him awaye.

In secrette she nurst him, and swayed his paine,
While he throughe the realm was believd to be slaine :
At lengthe his faire bride she consented to bee,
And made him glad father of prettye Bessie.

And nowe leste our foes oure lives sholde betraye,
We clothed ourselves in beggar's arraye,
Her jewelles shee solde, and hither came wee ;
All our comfort and care was our prettye Bessie.

And here have we lived in fortune's despite,
Thoughe meane, yet contented with humble delighte,
Thus many longe winters nowe have I beene
The sillye blinde beggar of Bednall-greene.

And here, noble lordes, is ended the songe
Of one, that once to your own ranke did belong :
And thus have you learned a secrete from mee,
That neer had been known but for prettye Bessie.

NOW O NOW I NEEDS MUST PART

Andante

Now, O now I needs must part, Parting
 While I live I needs must love: Love lives

though I absent mourn, Absence can no joy im-not when life is gone. Now, at last, des - pair doth part, Joy once fled can ne'er re - turn. Sad des-prove Love di - vi - ded loveth none.

pair doth drive me hence, That des-pair unkindness sends, If that parting be of - fence,

It is she which then of - fends.

Dear, when I from thee am gone,
 Gone are all my joys at once!
 I loved thee, and thee alone,
 In whose love I joyed once.
 While I live I needs must love,
 Love lives not when life is gone.

Now, at last, despair doth prove
 Love divided loveth none,
 And although your sight I leave,
 Sight wherein my joys do lie,
 Till that Death do sense bereave,
 Never shall affection die.

A POOR BEGGAR'S DAUGHTER

Moderato

A poore beggar's daughter did dwell on a greene, Who for her fairenesse might well be a queene; A blithe bonny lasse, and a dainty was shee, And many one call-ed her prettye Bessie.

Her father he had noe goods nor noe land,
 But begg'd for a penny all day with his hand;
 And yett to her marriage he gave thousands three,
 And still he hath somewhat for prettye Bessie.

And if any one here her birth doe disdaine,
 Her father is ready, with might and with maine,
 To prove she is come of noble degree;
 Therefore do not flout at prettye Bessie.

XIV

COME, LIVE WITH ME

Moderato

Come, live with me, and be my love, And we will all the pleasures prove That hills and valleys, dale and field, And all the craggy mountains yield.

There will we sit upon the rocks,
 And see the shepherds feed their flocks,
 By shallow rivers, to whose falls
 Melodious birds sing madrigals.

There will I make thee beds of roses,
 And twine a thousand fragrant posies ;
 A cap of flowers, and a kirtle,
 Embroider'd all with leaves of myrtle.

A gown made of the finest wool,
 Which from our pretty lambs we pull ;
 Slippers lined choicely for the cold,
 With buckles of the purest gold.

A belt of straw and ivy buds,
 With coral clasps and amber studs :
 And if these pleasures may thee move,
 Come, live with me, and be my love.

The shepherd swains shall dance and sing
 For thy delight each May morning ;
 If these delights thy mind may move,
 Then live with me, and be my love.

WHEN THAT I WAS A LITTLE TINY BOY

Moderato

When that I was a little tiny boy, With a heigh ! ho ! the wind and the rain, A foolish thing was but a toy, For the rain it raineth ev - 'ry day, With a heigh ! ho ! the wind and the rain, For the rain it raineth ev - 'ry day.

But when I came to man's estate,
 With a heigh ! ho ! the wind and the rain,
 'Gainst thieves and knaves men shut their gate,
 For the rain it raineth ev'ry day.

But when I came, alas ! to wive,
 With a heigh ! ho ! the wind and the rain,
 By swaggering never could I thrive,
 For the rain it raineth ev'ry day.

A great while ago the world begun,
 With a heigh ! ho ! the wind and the rain,
 But that's all one, our play is done,
 And we'll strive to please you ev'ry day.

PHILLIDA FLOUTS ME

Grazioso

O what a plague is love. I cannot bear it; She will in - constant prove I greatly fear it; It so tor - ments my mind, That my heart fail - eth; She wavers with the wind, As a ship sail - eth: Please her the best I may, She loves still to gain-say, Alack, and well a day! Phillida flouts me.

I often heard her say,
That she lov'd posies;
In the last month of May
I gave her roses,
Cowslips and gilly-flowers,
And the sweet lily

I got, to deck the bowers
Of my dear Philly.
She did them all disdain
And threw them back again:
Therefore 'tis flat and plain
Phillida flouts me.

Which way soe'er I go
 She still torments me,
 And whatsoe'er I do
 Nothing contents me :
 I fade, and pine away
 With grief and sorrow ;

I fall quite to decay,
 Like any shadow,
 I shall be dead, I fear,
 Within a thousand year ;
 And all because my dear
 Phillida flouts me.

For Age with stealing steps
 Hath clawde me in his crowch ;
 And lusty Youthe away he leapes,

THE SPANISH LADYLentamente

Will you hear a Spanish la - dy, How she wooed an English man? Garments gay and rich as may be, Deck'd with jewels, she had on; Of a comely countenance and grace was she, And by birth and par - en - tage of high de - gree.

As his prisoner there he kept her,
 On his hands her life did lye;
 Cupid's bands did tye them faster
 By the liking of an eye.

In his courteous company was all her joy,
 To favour him in anything she was not coy.

But at last there came commandment
 For to set the ladies free,
 With their jewels still adorned,
 None to do them injury.

Then said this lady mild "Full woe is me,
 O let me still sustain this kind captivity."

“ How should'st thou, fair lady, love me
Whom thou know'st thy country's foe?
Thy fair words make me suspect thee :
Serpents lie where flowers grow.”

“ All the harm I wish to thee, most courteous knight,
God grant the same upon my head may fully light.

“ Blessed be the time and season,
That you came on Spanish ground ;
If you may our foes be termed,
Gentle foes we have you found :

With our city, you have won our hearts each one,
Then to your country bear away that is your own.”

“ Courteous ladye, leave this fancy,
Here comes all that breeds the strife ;
I in England have already
A sweet woman to my wife ;

I will not falsify my vow for gold nor gain,
Nor yet for all the fairest dames that live in Spain.”

“ O how happy is that woman
That enjoys so true a friend !
Many happy days God send her ;
Of my suit I make an end ;

On my knees I pardon crave for my offence,
Which did from love and true affection first commence.

“ I will spend my days in prayer,
Love and all his laws defye ;
In a nunnery will I shroud me
Far from any companie :

But ere my prayers have an end, be sure of this,
To pray for thee and for thy love I will not miss.

“ Thus farewell most gallant captain !
Farewell too my heart's content !
Count not Spanish ladies wanton,
Though to thee my love was bent :

Joy and true prosperity goe still with thee !”
“ The like fall ever to thy share most fair ladyè.”

JOG ON, JOG ON

Jog on, jog on the foot-path way, And merrily hent the stile - a: Your merry heart goes all the day; Your sad tires in a mile - a.

Your paltry money-bags of gold,
 What need have we to stare for,
 When little or nothing soon is told,
 And we have the less to care for.

Cast away care, let sorrow cease,
 A fig for melancholy:
 Let's laugh and sing, or, if you please,
 We'll frolic with sweet Dolly.

O MISTRESS MINE

Moderato

O mistress mine, where are you roaming?
 O mis - tress mine, where are you roaming? O, stay and hear;
 your true love's coming, That can sing both high and low:
 Trip no further, pretty sweeting; journeys end
 in lovers' meeting, Ev'ry wise man's son doth know.

What is love? 'tis not hereafter;
 Present mirth hath present laughter;
 What's to come is still unsure:
 In delay there lies no plenty;
 Then come kiss me, sweet and twenty,
 Youth's a stuff will not endure.

IN THE MERRY MONTH OF MAY

Allegretto

In the merry month of May, On a morn at break of day, Forth I walk'd the wood so wide, When but May was in her pride; There I spied, all a-lone, all a - lone, Philli - da and Cory - don.

Much ado there was, God wot,
 For he would love, but she would not;
 She said never man was true,
 He said none was false to you,
 He said he had lov'd too long,
 She said love should have no wrong.

Corydon would kiss her then,
 She said maids must kiss no men
 Till they did for good and all;
 Then she made the shepherd call
 On all the heavens, to witness truth,
 That never loved a truer youth.

Thus with many a pretty oath,
 Yea and nay, and faith and troth,
 Such as silly shepherds use
 When they will not love abuse,
 Love, which had been long deluded,
 Was with kisses sweet concluded.

And Phillida with garlands gay
 Was crowned the lady of the May.

AND WILL HE NOT COME AGAIN

Adagio

And will he not come a - gain? And will he not come a - gain? No, no, he is dead, Go to thy death-bed, He never will come a - gain.

His beard was as white as snow,

All flaxen was his poll :

He is gone, he is gone,

And we cast away moan :

God 'a mercy on his soul !

IT WAS A LOVER AND HIS LASS

Vivace

It was a lover and his lass, With a hey, with a ho, with a hey non-ne - no, And a hey non - ne no-ni - no, That o'er the green cornfield did pass, In spring time, in spring time, in spring time; The only pretty ring time, When birds do sing, Hey ding a ding a ding, Hey ding a ding a ding, Hey ding a ding a ding, Sweet lovers love the spring.

And therefore take the present time,
 With a hey, with a ho, with a hey nonino,
 For love is crowned with the prime
 In spring time, &c.

Between the acres of the rye,
 With a hey, and a ho, and a hey nonino,
 These pretty country folks would lie,
 In spring time, &c.

This carol they began that hour,
 With a hey and a ho, and a hey nonino,
 How that life was but a flower
 In spring time, &c.

HOW SHOULD I YOUR TRUE LOVE KNOW

Andantino

How should I your true love know, From an-oth-er one?

By his co-ckle hat - and - staff, And his sandal shoon.

He is dead, and gone, lady,

He is dead and gone!

At his head a grass-green turf,

At his heels a stone.

White his shroud as the mountain snow,

Larded with sweet flowers,

Which bewept to the grave did not go,

With true-love showers.

THE HUNTER IN HIS CAREER

Con Spirito

Long ere the morn Ex - pects the return Of A-pollo, from the ocean queen; Be - fore the creak Of the crow, and the break Of the day in the welkin seen; Mounted he'd halloo, And cheerfully follow To the chase with his bugle clear: Echo doth he make, And the mountains, shake, With the thunder of his ca - reer.

Now bonny bay
 In his foine waxeth gray;
 Dapple-grey waxeth bay in his blood;
 White-Lily stops
 With the scent in her chaps,
 And Black-Lady makes it good.

Poor silly Wat,
In this wretched state,
Forgets these delights to hear ;
Nimble she bounds
From the cry of the hounds,
And the music of their career.

Hills with the heat
Of the gallopers' sweat,
Reviving their frozen tops,
And the dale's purple flowers,
That droop from the showers
That down from the rowels drops.
Swains their repast,
And strangers their haste
Neglect, when the horns they do hear ;
To see a fleet
Pack of hounds in a sheet,
And the hunter in his career.

Thus he careers
Over heaths, over meres,
Over deeps, over downs, over clay ;
Till he hath won
The noon from the morn,
And the evening from the day.
His sport then he ends,
And joyfully wends
Home again to his cottage, where Frankly he feasts
Himself and his guests,
And carouses in his career.

HARVEST HOME

 merrily roar out, Harvest Home! Harvest Home!
 Harvest Home! We'll merrily roar out Harvest Home!

Why should the vicar have one in ten?

One in ten; one in ten;

Why should the vicar have one in ten?

For staying while dinner is cold and hot,
 And pudding and dumpling are burnt to pot?

Burnt to pot; burnt to pot;

We'll drink off our liquor while we can stand,
 And hey for the honour of Old England!

YOU GENTLEMEN OF ENGLAND

Marcato

The musical score is written on a single treble clef staff in G major (one sharp) and common time (C). The tempo/mood is marked Marcato. The melody consists of six lines of music, each with a corresponding line of lyrics underneath. The lyrics are: "You Gentlemen of England, that live at home at ease, How little do you think up - on the dangers of the seas; Give ear un - to the mariners, And they will plainly show, All the cares and the fears When the stormy winds do blow." The score ends with a double bar line.

You Gentlemen of England, that live at home at ease, How little do you think up - on the dangers of the seas; Give ear un - to the mariners, And they will plainly show, All the cares and the fears When the stormy winds do blow.

The sailor must have courage,
No danger he must shun;
In every kind of weather
His course he still must run;

Now mounted on the top-mast,
How dreadful 'tis below !
Then we ride, as the tide,
When the stormy winds do blow.

If enemies oppose us,
And England is at war
With any foreign nation,
We fear not wound nor scar.
To humble them, come on, lads,
Their flags we'll soon lay low ;
Clear the way for the fray,
Tho' the stormy winds do blow.

Sometimes in Neptune's bosom
Our ship is toss'd by waves,
And every man expecting
The sea to be our graves ;
Then up aloft she's mounted,
And down again so low,
In the waves, on the seas,
When the stormy winds do blow.

But when the danger's over,
And safe we come on shore,
The horrors of the tempest
We think about no more ;
The flowing bowl invites us,
And joyfully we go,
All the day drink away,
Tho' the stormy winds do blow.

The Words altered from Martin Parker.

LOVE WILL FIND OUT THE WAY

Andantino

Over the mountains, And over the waves; Under the fountains, And under the graves; Under floods that are deepest, Which Neptune o - bey; Over rocks that are steepest, Love will find out the way.

Where there is no place
 For the glow-worm to lie;
 Where there is no space
 For receipt of a fly;
 Where the midge dares not venture,
 Lest herself fast she lay;
 If Love come he will enter,
 And soon find out his way.

You may esteem him
 A child for his might ;
Or you may deem him
 A coward from his flight :
But if she, whom Love doth honour,
 Be conceal'd from the day,
Set a thousand guards upon her,
 Love will find out the way.

Some think to lose him,
 By having him confin'd ;
And some do suppose him,
 Poor thing, to be blind ;
But if ne'er so close you wall him,
 Do the best that you may,
Blind Love, if so ye call him,
 Soon will find out his way.

You may train the eagle
 To stoop to your fist ;
Or you may inveigle
 The phoenix of the east ;
The lioness, ye may move her
 To give o'er her prey ;
But you'll ne'er stop a lover :
 He'll find out the way.

SINCE FIRST I SAW YOUR FACE

Lentamente

Since first I saw your face, I resolv'd To honour and re - nown you; If now I be dis-dain'd, I wish My heart had never known you. What!

I that lov'd, and you that liked, Shall we be - gin to wrangle! No, no, no, my heart is fast, And cannot disen - tangle.

If I admire or praise you too much,
That fault you may forgive me;
Or if my hands had stray'd to touch,
Then justly might you leave me.

I ask'd you leave, you bade me love,
Is't now a time to chide me?
No, no, no, I'll love you still,
What fortune e'er betide me.

The sun, whose beams most glorious are,
Rejecteth no beholder;
And your sweet beauty, past compare,
Made my poor eyes the bolder.
When beauty moves, and wit delights,
And signs of kindness bind me,
There, O there, where'er I go,
I'll leave my heart behind me.

[If I have wrong'd you, tell me wherein,
And I will soon amend it;
In recompense of such a sin,
Here is my heart, I'll send it.
If that will not your mercy move,
Then for my life I care not;
Then, O then, torment me still,
And take my life, and spare not.]

A NORTH-COUNTRY LASS

Andantino

A North-Country lass up to London did pass, Although with her nature it did not a-gree, Which made her repent, and so often lament, Still wishing again in the North for to be. O the oak and the ash, and the bonny ivy tree Do flourish at home in my own country!

Fain would I be in the North Country,
 Where the lads and the lasses are making of hay;
 There should I see what is pleasant to me;—
 A mischief light on them entic'd me away!
 O the oak, and the ash, &c.

I like not the court, nor the city resort,
Since there is no fancy for such maids as me ;
Their pomp and their pride, I can never abide,
Because with my humour it doth not agree.

O the oak, and the ash, &c.

How oft have I been in the Westmoreland green,
Where the young men and maidens resort for to play,
Where we with delight, from morning till night,
Could feast it, and frolic on each holiday.

O the oak, and the ash, &c.

The ewes and their lambs, with the kids and their dams,
To see in the country how finely they play ;
The bells they do ring, and the birds they do sing,
And the fields and the gardens, so pleasant and gay.

O the oak, and the ash, &c.

At wakes and at fairs, being 'void of all cares,
We there with our lovers did use for to dance ;
Then hard hap had I, my ill fortune to try,
And so up to London, my steps to advance.

O the oak, and the ash, &c.

But still I perceive, I a husband might have,
If I to the city my mind could but frame ;
But I'll have a lad that is North-Country bred,
Or else I'll not marry, in the mind that I am.

O the oak, and the ash, &c.

A maiden I am, and a maid I'll remain,
Until my own country again I do see,
For here in this place I shall ne'er see the face
Of him that's allotted my love for to be.

O the oak, and the ash, &c.

Then farewell my daddy, and farewell my mammy,
Until I do see you, I nothing but mourn ;
Rememb'ring my brothers, my sisters, and others,
In less than a year, I hope to return.

Then the oak, and the ash, &c.

XXXII

I SOW'D THE SEEDS OF LOVE.

Moderato

The musical score is written on a single treble clef staff in common time (C). The tempo is marked 'Moderato'. The melody consists of four lines of music. The lyrics are printed below the notes. The first line ends with a comma, and the second line ends with a period. The third and fourth lines end with a double bar line.

I sow'd the seeds of love, It was all in the Spring, In April, May and sunny June, When small birds they do sing, When small birds they do sing.

My garden was planted full
 Of flowers every where,
 But for myself I could not choose
 The flower I held so dear.

My gardener was standing by,
 And he would choose for me ;
 He chose the primrose, the lily and pink,
 But those I refused all three.

The primrose I did reject,
 Because it came too soon ;
 The lily and pink I overlook'd,
 And vow'd I would wait till June.

In June came the rose so red,
And that's the flower for me ;
But when I gather'd the rose so dear
I gain'd but the willow tree.

Oh ! the willow tree will twist,
And the willow tree will twine ;
And would I were in the young man's arms,
That ever has this heart of mine.

My gardener, as he stood by,
He bade me take great care,
For if I gather'd the rose so red,
There groweth up a sharp thorn there.

I told him I'd take no care,
Till I did feel the smart,
And still did press the rose so dear
Till the thorn did pierce my heart.

A posy of hyssop I'll make,
No other flower I'll touch,
That all the world may plainly see
I love one flower too much.

My garden is now run wild ;
When I shall plant anew,
My bed, that once was fill'd with thyme,
Is now o'errun with rue.

BARBARA ALLEN

Andante

In Scarlet Town, where I was born, There was a fair maid dwellin', Made ev' - ry youth cry,
Well a day! Her name was Barbara Al - len.

All in the merry month of May,
When green buds they were swellin',
Young Jemmy Grove on his death-bed lay,
For love of Barbara Allen.

He sent his man unto her then,
To the town where she was dwellin',
'You must come to my master dear,
Giff your name be Barbara Allen.

'For death is printed on his face,
And o'er his heart is stealin',
Then haste away to comfort him,
O lovely Barbara Allen.'

'Though death be printed on his face,
And o'er his heart is stealin',
Yet little better shall he be
For bonny Barbara Allen.'

So slowly, slowly she came up,
And slowly she came nigh him;
And all she said when there she came,
'Young man, I think you're dying.'

He turn'd his face unto her straight,
With deadly sorrow sighing,
'O lovely maid, come, pity me,
I'm on my death-bed lying.'

'If on your death-bed you do lie,
What needs the tale you're tellin' ?
I cannot keep you from your death ;
Farewell,' said Barbara Allen.
He turn'd his face unto the wall,
As deadly pangs he fell in :
'Adieu, adieu, unto you all,
Adieu to Barbara Allen.'
As she was walking o'er the fields,
She heard the bell a knellin' ;
And every stroke did seem to say,
Unworthy Barbara Allen !
She turn'd her body round about,
And spied the corpse a coming ;
'Lay down, lay down, the corpse,' she said,
'That I may look upon him.'
With scornful eye she lookèd down,
Her cheek with laughter swellin',
While all her friends cried out amain,
'Unworthy Barbara Allen !'
When he was dead and laid in grave,
Her heart was struck with sorrow,
'O mother, mother, make my bed,
For I shall die to-morrow.
'Hard hearted creature him to slight,
Who lovèd me so dearly :
O that I had been more kind to him,
When he was live, and near me !'
She, on her death-bed as she lay,
Begg'd to be buried by him,
And sore repented of the day
That she did e'er deny him.
'Farewell,' she said, 'ye virgins all,
And shun the fault I fell in ;
Henceforth take warning by the fall
Of cruel Barbara Allen.'

TO ALL YOU LADIES

To all you ladies now at land, We men at sea in - dite; But first would have you understand How hard it is to write. The Muses now, and Neptune too, We must implore to write to you. With a fa la la la la.

Repeat in Chorus

For though the Muses should prove kind,
 And fill our empty brain,
 Yet, if rough Neptune rouse the wind
 To wave the azure main,
 Our paper, pen, and ink, and we
 Roll up and down our ships at sea.
 With a fa, &c.

Then if we write not by each post,
Think not we are unkind,
Nor yet conclude your ships are lost,
By Dutchmen or by wind :
Our tears we'll send a speedier way,
The tide shall bring them twice a-day.
With a fa, &c.

The king, with wonder and surprise,
Will swear the seas grow bold,
Because the tides will higher rise,
Than e'er they us'd of old :
But let him know it is our tears
Bring floods of grief to Whitehall stairs.
With a fa, &c.

Could foggy Opdam chance to know
Our sad and dismal story,
The Dutch would scorn so weak a foe,
And put their fort at Goree ;
For what resistance can they find
From men who've left their hearts behind !

Let wind and weather do its worst,
Be you to us but kind ;
Let Dutchmen vapour, Spaniards curse,
No sorrow we shall find.
'Tis then no matter how things go,
Or who's our friend, or who's our foe.
With a fa, &c.

To pass our tedious hours away,
We throw a merry main ;
Or else at serious ombre play ;
But why should we in vain
Each other's ruin thus pursue ?
We were undone when we left you.
With a fa, &c.

But now our fears tempestuous grow,
 And cast our hopes away ;
 Whilst you, regardless of our woe,
 Sit careless at a play ;
 Perhaps permit some happier man
 To kiss your hand or flirt your fan.
 With a fa, &c.

When any mournful tune you hear,
 That dies in every note ;
 As if it sigh'd with each man's care,
 For being so remote ;
 Think then how often love we've made
 To you, when all those tunes were play'd.
 With a fa, &c.

In justice you cannot refuse
 To think of our distress,
 When we for hopes of honour lose
 Our certain happiness ;
 All those designs are but to prove Ourselves more worthy of your love.
 With a fa, &c.

And now we've told you all your loves,
 And likewise all our fears ;
 In hopes this declaration moves
 Some pity from your tears ;
 Let's hear of no inconstancy,
 We have too much of that at sea.

DRINK TO ME ONLY WITH THINE EYES

Andantino

Drink to me only with thine eyes, And

I will pledge with mine ; Or leave a kiss within the cup, And I'll not ask for wine. The thirst that from the soul doth rise, Doth ask a drink di - vine ; But might I of Jove's nectar sup, I would not change for thine.

I sent thee late a rosy wreath,
Not so much honouring thee,
As giving it a hope that there
It could not withered be ;

But thou thereon didst only breathe,
And sent'st it back to me ;
Since when it grows, and smells, I swear,
Not of itself, but thee.

Those heroes of antiquity ne'er saw a cannon ball,
 Or knew the force of powder to slay their foes withal ;
 But our brave boys do know it, and banish all their fears,

Chorus—But our brave boys, &c.

Whene'er we are commanded to storm the palisades,
 Our leaders march with fuses, and we with hand grenades ;
 We throw them from the glacis, about the enemies' ears,

Chorus—We throw them, &c.

And when the siege is over, we to the town repair,
The townsmen cry Hurra, boys, here comes a Grenadier,
Here come the Grenadiers, my boys, who know no doubts or

Then sing tow, row, row, row, row, row, for the British Grenadiers.
Chorus—Here come the, &c.

Then let us fill a bumper, and drink a health to those Who carry caps and pouches, and wear the louped clothes;
May they and their commanders live happy all their years,

THE ROAST BEEF OF OLD ENGLAND

Vivace

When mighty roast beef was the Englishman's food, It en - nobled our hearts, and enriched our blood, Our soldiers were brave and our courtiers were good. Oh! the roast beef of old England! And oh! for old . England's roast beef!

But since we have learn'd from effeminate France
 To eat their ragouts as well as to dance,
 We are fed up with nothing but vain complaisance.
 Oh! the roast beef, &c.

Our fathers of old were robust, stout, and strong,
 And kept open house, with good cheer, all day long,
 Which made their plump tenants rejoice in the song,—Oh &c.
 When good Queen Elizabeth sat on the throne,
 Ere coffee and tea, and such slip-slops were known,
 The world was in terror if e'er she did frown.—Oh &c.

In those days if fleets did presume on the main,
They seldom or never return'd back again,
As witness the vaunting armada of Spain.—Oh &c.

Oh, then we had stomachs to eat and to fight,
And when wrongs were cooking, to set ourselves right ;
But now we're a-hm !—I could, but good night. —Oh &c.

THERE WAS A JOLLY MILLER

There was a jolly miller once liv'd on the river Dee; He work'd and sung from morn till night, no lark more blithe than he. And this the burthen of his song for ever used to be,— I care for nobody, no, not I, Since nobody cares for me.

I love my mill, she is to me like parent, child and wife,

BLACK-EYED SUSAN

All in the Downs the fleet was moored, The streamers waving in the wind, When black-eyed Susan came aboard; "O where shall I my true love find? Tell me, ye jovial sailors, tell me true, If my sweet William, if my sweet

William sails a - mong your crew."

William, who high upon the yard,
 Rock'd with the billows to and fro,
 Soon as her well known voice he heard,
 He sigh'd, and cast his eyes below :
 The cord slides swiftly through his glowing hands,
 And, quick as lightning, on the deck he stands.

So the sweet lark, high pois'd in air,
Shuts close his pinions to his breast,
If chance his mate's shrill voice he hear,
And drops at once into her nest :
The noblest captain in the British fleet
Might envy William's lips those kisses sweet.

“ O Susan, Susan, lovely dear,
My vows shall ever true remain ;
Let me kiss off that falling tear :
We only part to meet again.
Change as ye list, ye winds ; my heart shall be
The faithful compass that still points to thee.

“ Believe not what the landmen say,
Who tempt with doubts thy constant mind :
They'll tell thee, sailors, when away,
In every port a mistress find.
Yes, yes, believe them when they tell thee so,
For thou art present wheresoe'er I go.

“ If to fair India's coast we sail,
Thy eyes are seen in diamonds bright ;
Thy breath is Afric's spicy gale,
Thy skin is ivory so white.
Thus every beauteous object that I view,
Wakes in my soul some charm of lovely Sue.

“ Though battle call me from thy arms,
Let not my pretty Susan mourn ;
Though cannons roar, yet safe from harms
William shall to his dear return.
Love turns aside the balls that round me fly,
Lest precious tears should drop from Susan's eye.”

The boatswain gave the dreadful word,
The sails their swelling bosom spread ;
No longer must she stay on board :
They kiss'd, she sigh'd, he hung his head.
Her less'ning boat unwilling rows to land ;
“ Adieu !” she cries, and wav'd her lily hand.

SALLY IN OUR ALLEY

Andantino

Of all the girls that are so smart, There's none like Pretty Sally; She is the darling of my heart, And lives in our alley. There's ne'er a lady in the land Is half so sweet as Sally; She is the dar - ling of my heart, And lives in our alley.

Her father he makes cabbage nets,
 And through the streets does cry them ;
 Her mother she sells laces long
 To such as please to buy them :
 But sure such folk can have no part
 In such a girl as Sally ;
 She is the darling of my heart,
 And lives in our alley.

When she is by, I leave my work,
I love her so sincerely ;
My master comes, like any Turk,
And bangs me most severely :
But let him bang, long as he will,
I'll bear it all for Sally ;
She is the darling of my heart,
And lives in our alley.

Of all the days are in the week,
I dearly love but one day,
And that's the day that comes betwixt
A Saturday and Monday ;
For then I'm dress'd, in all my best,
To walk abroad with Sally ;
She is the darling of my heart,
And lives in our alley.

My master carries me to church,
And often I am blamed,
Because I leave him in the lurch,
Soon as the text is named :
I leave the church in sermon time,
And slink away to Sally ;
She is the darling of my heart,
And lives in our alley.

When Christmas comes about again,
O then I shall have money ;
I'll hoard it up and, box and all,
I'll give unto my honey :
I would it were ten thousand pounds,
I'd give it all to Sally ;
She is the darling of my heart,
And lives in our alley.

My master and the neighbours all,
Make game of me and Sally,
And but for she I'd better be
A slave, and row a galley :
But when my seven long years are out,
O then I'll marry Sally,
And then how happily we'll live—
But not in our alley.

HERE'S A HEALTH TO THE QUEEN

Moderato

Here's a health to the Queen, and a lasting peace, To faction an end, to wealth in-crease; Come let's drink it while we have breath, For there's no drink-ing after death, And he that will this health de-ny, Down among the dead men,

Down among the dead men, Down, down, down, down,

Down among the dead men let him lie!

Let charming beauty's health go round,
 In whom celestial joys are found,
 And may confusion still pursue
 The senseless, woman-hating crew;
 And they that woman's health deny,
 Down among the dead men let them lie!

In smiling Bacchus' joys I'll roll,
 Deny no pleasure to my soul;
 Let Bacchus' health round briskly move,
 For Bacchus is a friend to Love.

And he that will this health deny,
Down among the dead men let him lie !

May love and wine their rights maintain,
And their united pleasures reign,
While Bacchus' treasure crowns the board,
We'll sing the joys that both afford ;
And they that won't with us comply,
Down among the dead men let them lie !

 Ned that died at sea.

His father was a commodore ;
 His king and country serv'd had he ;
 But now his tears in torrents pour
 For comely Ned that died at sea.

His sister Peg her brother lov'd,
 For a right tender heart had she ;
 And often to strong grief was mov'd,
 For comely Ned that died at sea.

His sweetheart Grace, once blythe and gay,
 That led the dance upon the lea,
 Now wastes in tears the ling'ring day
 For comely Ned that died at sea.

His friends who lov'd his manly worth,—
 For none more friends could boast than he,—
 To mourn now lay aside their mirth,
 For comely Ned that died at sea.

Come, then, and join, with friendly tear,
 The song that 'midst of all our glee,
 We from our hearts chant once a year,
 For comely Ned that died at sea.

THE VICAR OF BRAY

Con spirito

In good King Charles's golden days, When loyalty no harm meant, A zealous high-churchman was I, And so I got pre - fer - ment. To teach my flock, I ne - ver miss'd, Kings were by God appointed, And lost all those that dare resist, Or touch the Lord's a - nointed. And this is law that I'll maintain, Un - til my dying day, Sir, That what-so - ever king shall reign, I'll still be Vicar of Bray, Sir.

When royal James possess'd the crown,
And Popery came in fashion,
The penal laws I hooted down,
And read the Declaration :
The Church of Rome I found would fit
Full well my constitution ;
And I had been a Jesuit,
But for the Revolution.
And this is law, &c.

When William was our king declar'd,
To ease the nation's grievance,
With this new wind about I steer'd,
And swore to him allegiance.
Old principles I did revoke,
Set conscience at a distance ;
Passive obedience was a joke,
A jest was non-resistance.
And this is law, &c.

When royal Anne became our queen,
The Church of England's glory,
Another face of things was seen,
And I became a Tory :
Occasional conformists base,
I blam'd their moderation ;
And thought the Church in danger was,
By such prevarication.
And this is law, &c.

When George in pudding-time came o'er,
And moderate men look'd big, Sir,
My principles I chang'd once more,
And so became a Whig, Sir ;
And thus preferment I procur'd
From our new faith's-defender ;
And almost every day abjur'd
The Pope and the Pretender.
And this is law, &c.

Th' illustrious house of Hanover,
 And Protestant succession,
 To them I do allegiance swear—
 While they can hold possession;
 For in my faith and loyalty
 I never more will falter,
 And George my lawful king shall be,—
 Until the times do alter.
 And this is law, &c.

TO YOU WHO LIVE AT HOME AT EASE

Moderato

The musical score is written on a single treble clef staff in G major (one sharp) and common time (C). The tempo is marked 'Moderato'. The melody consists of five lines of music. The lyrics are printed below the notes, with hyphens indicating syllables that span across two notes. The piece concludes with a double bar line.

To you who live at home at ease, And revel in de - light, To you who live at home at ease, And re - vel in de - light, We mariners that sail the seas, Be - friended by a gentle breeze, To you we thus in - dite:

Let all your perturbations die,
Your private feuds allay,
Let every animosity
For ever in oblivion lie,
Now we are gone to sea.

When forked lightning flies amain,
And thunder splits our mast,
Think then what dangers we sustain,
Compelled by you to cross the main,
For human frailties past.

I hope to see my dear once more,
Tho' I my voyage pursue ;
Tho' winds unite and billows roar
To waft me from Britannia's shore,
I'll be for ever true.

I neither dread the war's alarms,
Nor poison'd Indian dart ;
But, while engaged in hostile arms,
I'll be inspired by Molly's charms,
With whom I leave my heart.

When having suffered an exile,
And favoured by the wind,
Enriched with Carolina's spoil,
And coasting for my native isle,
Perhaps she'll then prove kind.

THE GIRL I'VE LEFT BEHIND ME

I'm lonesome since I cross'd the hill, And o'er the moor and valley; Such heavy thoughts my heart do fill, Since parting with my Sal - ly. I seek no more the fine and gay, For each does but remind me How swift the hours did pass away, With the girl I've left be - hind me.

Oh! ne'er shall I forget the night,
 The stars were bright above me,
 And gently lent their silv'ry light,
 When first she vow'd to love me.
 But now I'm bound to Brighton camp,
 Kind Heaven, then pray guide me,
 And send me safely back again
 To the girl I've left behind me.

Had I the art to sing her praise
With all the skill of Homer,
One only theme should fill my lays—
The charms of my true lover.
So, let the night be e'er so dark,
Or e'er so wet and windy,
Kind heaven send me back again
To the girl I've left behind me.

Her golden hair in ringlets fair,
Her eyes like diamonds shining,
Her slender waist with carriage chaste,
May leave the swain repining.
Ye gods above! Oh hear my prayer,
To my beauteous fair to bind me,
And send me safely back again
To the girl I've left behind me.

The bee shall honey taste no more,
The dove become a ranger,
The falling waves shall cease to roar,
Ere I shall seek to change her.
The vows we register'd above
Shall ever cheer and bind me,
In constancy to her I love,
The girl I've left behind me.

My mind her form shall still retain,
In sleeping or in waking,
Until I see my love again,
For whom my heart is breaking.
If ever I return that way,
And she should not decline me,
I evermore will live and stay
With the girl I've left behind me.

HEART OF OAK

Allegro pomposo

Come cheer up my lads, 'tis to glo-ry we steer, To add something more to this wonderful year; To honour we call you, as freemen not slaves,—For who are so free as the sons of the waves! Heart of oak are our ships, Heart of oak are our men; We always are ready; Steady, boys, steady; We'll fight and we'll conquer a - gain and a - gain.

The musical score is written on a single treble clef staff in common time (C). It consists of eight lines of music. The first line begins with the tempo marking 'Allegro pomposo'. The melody is characterized by a steady, rhythmic pattern of eighth and sixteenth notes, often with beamed pairs. The lyrics are printed below the staff, with line breaks corresponding to the musical phrases. The piece concludes with a double bar line at the end of the eighth line.

We ne'er see our foes but we wish them to stay,
They never see us but they wish us away ;
If they run, why we follow, and run them ashore,
For, if they won't fight us, we cannot do more.

Heart of oak, &c.

They swear they'll invade us, these terrible foes ;
They frighten our women, our children, and beaus ;
But, should their flat bottoms in darkness get o'er,
Still Britons they'll find to receive them on shore.

Heart of oak, &c.

We'll still make them fear, and we'll still make them flee,
And drub 'em on shore, as we've drubb'd 'em at sea,
Then cheer up, my lads, with one heart let us sing,
Our soldiers, our sailors, our statesmen, our king.

Heart of oak, &c.

We'll still make 'em run, and we'll still make 'em sweat,
In spite of the devil, and Brussels Gazette,
Then cheer up, my lads, with one heart let us sing,
Our soldiers, our sailors, our statesmen, and king.

WITH JOCKEY TO THE FAIR

Vivace

'Twas on the morn of sweet May - day, When na-ture paint-ed all things gay, Taught birds to sing and lambs to play, And deck'd the meadows fair, Young Jockey, early in the morn, A - rose and tripp'd it o'er the lawn; His Sunday coat the youth put on, For Jenny had vow'd a - way to run With Jockey to the Fair. For Jenny had vow'd a - way to run With Jockey to the Fair.

The cheerful parish bells had rung,
With eager steps he trudg'd along ;
Sweet flow'ry garlands round him hung,
Which shepherds us'd to wear :
He tapp'd the window,—“Haste, my dear,”
Jenny, impatient, cried, “Who's there ?”
“'Tis I, my love, and no one near,
Step gently down, you've nought to fear
With Jockey to the Fair.” Step gently, &c.

“My Dad and Mammy're fast asleep,
My brother's up and with the sheep,
And will you still your promise keep
Which I have heard you swear ?
And will you ever constant prove ?”
“I will, by all the powers above,
And ne'er deceive my charming dove,
Dispel these doubts, and haste, my love,
With Jockey to the Fair.” Dispel these, &c.

“Behold the ring,” the shepherd cried,
“Will Jenny be my charming bride ?
Let Cupid be our happy guide,
And Hymen meet us there !”
Then Jockey did his vows renew,
He would be constant, would be true,
His word was pledg'd ; away she flew,
With cowslips sparkling with the dew,
With Jockey to the Fair. With cowslips, &c.

Soon did they meet a joyful throng,
Their gay companions blythe and young ;
Each joins the dance, each joins the song,
To hail the happy pair.
What two were e'er so fond as they ?
All bless the kind propitious day,
The smiling morn and blooming May,
When lovely Jenny ran away
With Jockey to the Fair. When lovely, &c.

FAIR HEBE I LEFT

Fair Hebe I left, with a cautious design, To es - cape from her charms, and to drown love in wine: I tried it, but found, when I came to de - part, The wine in my head, but still love in my heart.

I repair'd to my Reason, entreating her aid,
 She paus'd on my case, and each circumstance weigh'd
 Then gravely pronounc'd, in return to my prayer,
 That Hebe was fairest of all that was fair.

That's a truth, replied I, I've no need to be taught,
 I came for a council to find out a fault;
 If that's all, quoth Reason, return as you came,
 To find fault with Hebe would forfeit my name.

What hopes then, alas! of relief from my pain,
 When like lightning she darts through each throbbing vein?
 My senses surpris'd, in her favour took arms,
 And Reason confirms me a slave to her charms.

YOUTH'S THE SEASON MADE FOR JOYS

Andante

Youth's the season made for joys,

Love is then our du - ty; She alone whom that em - ploys Well deserves her beauty.

Come be gay, While we may, Beauty's a flow'r despised in de - cay; Youth's the season made for joys,

Love is then a du - ty.

Love with youth flies swift away,
 Age is nought but sorrow;
 Let us drink and sport to-day,
 Our's is not to-morrow.
 Dance and sing,
 Time's on the wing,
 Life never knows the return of Spring.
 Let us drink and sport to-day
 Our's is not to-morrow.

AS DOWN IN THE MEADOWS

Andantino

As down in the meadows I chanc'd for to pass, O
 there I beheld a young beau - ti - ful lass, Her age, I am sure, it was scarce - ly fifteen, And she on her head wore a garland of green. Her lips were like rubies, and as for her eyes, They sparkled like diamonds, or stars in the skies; And then, O her voice, it was charming and clear! As sadly she sung for the loss of her dear.

Why does my love, Willy, prove false and unkind,
O why does he change like the wavering wind,
From one that is loyal in every degree,
Ah, why does he change to another from me ?
In the meadows as we were a making of hay,
Oh there did we pass the soft minutes away,
And then was I kiss'd and set down on his knee,
No man in the world was so loving as he.

But now he has left me, and Fanny the fair
Employs all his wishes, his hopes, and his care ;
He kisses her lip as she sits on his knee,
And says all the sweet things he once said to me.
But, if she believe him, the false-hearted swain
Will leave her, and then she with me may complain ;
For nought is more certain, believe, silly Sue,
Who once has been faithless can never be true.

She finished her song, and rose up to be gone,
When over the meadow came jolly young John,
Who told her that she was the joy of his life,
And if she'd consent he would make her his wife :
She could not refuse him, to church so they went,
Young Willy's forgot, and young Susan's content.
Most men are like Willy, most women like Sue,
If men will be false, why should women be true ?

MY LODGING IT IS ON THE COLD GROUND

Andante

My lodging it is on the cold ground, And oh! very hard is my fare, But that which grieves me more, love, Is the cold-ness of my dear. Yet still he cried, O turn, love, I prythee, love, turn to me; For thou art the on-ly girl, love, That art a-dored by me.

With a garland of straw I'll crown thee, love,
 And marry thee with a rush ring;
 Thy frozen heart shall melt with love,
 So, merrily I shall sing.
 Yet still he cried &c.

But, if thou wilt harden thy heart, love,
And be deaf to my pitiful moan,
Then I must endure the smart, love,
And shiver in straw, all alone.
Yet still he cried &c.

THE WINTER IT IS PAST

Andantino

The winter it is past, And the summer comes at last, And the small birds sing on ev - 'ry tree; Now ev - 'ry thing is glad, While I am very sad, Since my true love is parted from me.

The musical score is written in treble clef with a key signature of one flat (Bb) and a time signature of 2/4. It consists of five staves of music. The first staff begins with the tempo marking 'Andantino'. The lyrics are placed below the notes, with hyphens indicating syllables that span across two notes. The piece concludes with a double bar line.

The rose upon the briar, by the waters running clear,
May have charms for the linnet or the bee;
Their little loves are blest, and their little hearts at rest;
But my true love is parted from me.

EARLY ONE MORNING

Grazioso

Early one morning, just as the sun was ris - ing, I heard a maid sing in the val - ley be - low;—“O don't de - ceive me, O never leave me,
 How could you use a poor maiden so?

“O gay is the garland, fresh are the roses
 I've culled from the garden to bind on thy brow;
 O don't deceive me! O do not leave me!
 How could you use a poor maiden so?”

“Remember the vows that you made to your Mary,
 Remember the bow'r where you vow'd to be true;
 O don't deceive me! O never leave me!
 How could you use a poor maiden so?”

Thus sung the poor maiden, her sorrow bewailing,
 Thus sung the poor maid in the valley below,
 “O don't deceive me! O do not leave me!
 How could you use a poor maiden so?”

THE BLUE BELL OF SCOTLAND

Andantino

Oh, where! and Oh, where! is your Highland laddie gone? He's gone to fight the French for King George upon the throne; And it's

oh! in my heart, how I wish him safe at home!

Oh, where! and oh, where! does your Highland laddie dwell?
 He dwells in merry Scotland, at the sign of the Blue Bell;
 And it's oh! in my heart, that I love my laddie well.

What clothes, in what clothes is your Highland laddie clad?
 His bonnet's of the Saxon green, his waistcoat's of the plaid;
 And it's oh! in my heart, that I love my Highland lad.

Suppose, oh, suppose that your Highland lad should die?
 The bagpipes shall play over him, I'll lay me down and cry;
 And it's oh! in my heart, that I wish he may not die!

O WEEL MAY THE KEEL ROW

Allegro

As I came thro' Sandgate, thro'
 Sandgate, thro' Sandgate, As I came thro'
 Sand-gate I heard a las-sie sing, O weel may the keel row, the keel row, the keel row, O weel may the keel row, That my lad-die's in.

O wha's like my Johnny,
 Sae leith, sae blythe, sae bonny?
 He's foremost among the mony
 Keel lads o' coaly Tyne:
 He'll set and row so tightly,
 Or in the dance—so sprightly—
 He'll cut and shuffle sightly;
 'Tis true,—were he not mine.

He wears a blue bonnet,
 Blue bonnet, blue bonnet;
 He wears a blue bonnet,—
 A dimple in his chin:
 And weel may the keel row,
 The keel row, the keel row;
 And weel may the keel row,
 That my laddie's in.

At a May pole down in Kent, Now

Spring with flow-'ry sweets was come, Nymphs with swains to

 No crown but her locks of jet
 Now does your free allegiance get.

When the bright God of Day Drove to

In a jessamine bower,
(When the bean was in flower
And zephyrs breathed odours around) - Lov'd Celia she sat,
With her song and spinet,
And she charmed all the grove with her sound.

Rosy Bowers she sung,
While the harmony rung,
And the bees they all fluttering arrive ;
The industrious bees,
From the flowers and the trees,
Gently hum with their sweets to their hive.

The gay God of Love
As he flew o'er the grove,
By zephyrs conducted along,
As she touched on the strings
He beat time with his wings,
While Echo repeated the song.

O ye mortals beware
 How ye venture too near,
 Love doubly is armèd to wound ;
 Your fate you can shun,
 For you're surely undone
 If you rashly approach near the sound.

 surely they're the fairest flowers That in that gar - den

I'd not walk'd in that garden
 The past of half an hour,
 When there I saw two pretty maids
 Sitting under a shady bow'r.

The first was lovely Nancy,
So beautiful and fair,
The other was a virgin,
Who did the laurel wear.

I boldly stepp'd up to her,
And unto her did say,
Are you engaged to any young man?
Do tell to me, I pray.
I'm not engaged to any young man,
I solemnly do swear,
I mean to live a virgin,
And still the laurel wear.

Then hand in hand together
This lovely couple went ;
Resolved was the sailor boy
To know her full intent ;
To know if he would slighted be,
When to her the truth he told :
Oh no ! oh no ! oh no ! she cried,
I love a sailor bold !

 A generous education.

Some well-known object kept in view,—
An abbey, tower, a harbour, fort,
Or beacon to the vessel true;

While oft the lead the seaman flung,
And to the pilot cheerly sung,
 "By the mark, Seven!"

And as the much-lov'd shore we near,
With transport we behold the roof
Where dwelt a friend or partner dear,

The lead once more the seaman flung,
And to the watchful pilot sung,

GATHER YE ROSEBUDS

Allegretto

Gather ye rosebuds while ye may, Old

Time is still a - fly - ing; And this same flower that smiles to - day, To - morrow will be dy-ing.

The glorious lamp of heaven, the sun,
 The higher he's a getting,
 The sooner will his race be run,
 And nearer he's to setting.

That age is best which is the first,
 When youth and blood are warmer;
 But being spent, the worse, and worst
 Times still succeed the former.

Then be not coy, but use your time,
 And, while ye may, go marry;
 For having once but lost your prime,
 You may for ever tarry.

The Words by Herrick.

THE STORM

Maestoso

Cease rude Boreas, blust'ring railer! List ye lands-men all, to me; Mess-mates, hear a brother sailor Sing the dangers of the sea. From bounding billows first in motion, When the distant whirlwinds rise, To the tempest - troubled ocean, Where the seas contend with skies.

Hark! the boatswain hoarsely bawling,—
By topsail-sheets and hauylards stand,
Down top-gallants quick be hauling,
Down your staysails,— hand, boys, hand!

Now it freshens, set the braces,
Quick the topsail-sheets let go ;
Luff, boys, luff, don't make wry faces,
Up your topsails nimbly clew.

Now all you at home in safety,
Sheltered from the howling storm,
Tasting joys by Heaven vouchsafed ye,
Of our state vain notions form.

Round us roars the tempest louder,
Think what fear our mind enthral !
Harder yet it blows, still harder
Now again the boatswain calls.

The topsail-yards point to the wind, boys,
See all clear to reef each course—
Let the foresheet go—don't mind, boys,
Though the weather should be worse.

Fore and aft the spritsail-yard get,
Reef the mizen—see all clear—
Hand up, each preventer-brace set—
Man the foreyards—cheer, lads, cheer !

Now the awful thunder's rolling,
Peal on peal contending clash ;
On our heads fierce rain falls pouring,
In our eyes blue lightnings flash :

One wide water all around us,
All above us one black sky,
Diff'rent deaths at once surround us,
Hark ! what means that dreadful cry ?

The foremast's gone ! cries ev'ry tongue out,
O'er the lee twelve feet 'bove deck ;
A leak beneath the chest-tree's sprung out—
Call all hands to clear the wreck.

Quick, the lanyards cut to pieces—
 Come, my hearts, be stout and bold !
 Plumb the well—the leak increases—
 Four feet water in the hold !

While o'er the ship wild waves are beating,
 We for our wives and children mourn ;
 Alas, from hence there's no retreating !
 Alas, to them there's no return !
 Still the danger grows upon us,
 Wild confusion reigns below,
 Heav'n have mercy here upon us,
 For only that can save us now.

O'er the lee-beam is the land, boys—
 Let the guns o'erboard be thrown—
 To the pump come, every hand, boys,
 See, our mizenmast is gone.
 The leak we've found it cannot pour fast,
 We've lighten'd her a foot or more ;
 Up and rig a jury foremast—
 She rights !—she rights !—boys, wear off shore.

Now once more on joys we're thinking,
 Since kind Heav'n has spar'd our lives,
 Come, the can, boys, let's be drinking
 To our sweethearts and our wives :
 Fill it up, about ship wheel it,
 Close to the lips a brimmer join ;—
 Where's the tempest now, who feels it ?
 None—our danger's drown'd in wine.

WHO LIVETH SO MERRY

Who liveth so merry in all this land As doth the poor widow that selleth the sand? And ever she singeth as I can guess "Will you buy a - ny sand a - ny sand Mis - tress?"

The broom-man maketh his living most sweet,
 With carrying of brooms from street to street ;
Cho. Who would desire a pleasanter thing
 Than all the day long doing nothing but sing?

The chimney sweeper all the long day,
 He singeth and sweepeth the soot away :
Cho. Yet when he comes home, although he be weary,
 With his sweet wife he maketh himself full merry.

The cobbler he sits cobbling till noon,
And cobbleth his shoes till they be done :

Cho. Yet doth he not fear, and so doth say,
For he knows his work will soon decay.

The merchant-man doth sail on the seas,
And lie on the ship board with little ease :

Cho. Always in doubt the rock is near,
How can he be merry and make good cheer ?

The husbandman all day goeth to plough,
And when he comes home he serveth his sow :

Cho. He moileth, and moileth, all the long year,
How can he be merry and make good cheer ?

The serving man waiteth from street to street,
With blowing his nails and beating his feet :

Cho. And serveth for forty shillings a year,
That 'tis impossible to make good cheer.

Who liveth so merry and maketh such sport,
As those that be of the poorest sort ?

Cho. The poorest sort, wheresoever they be,
They gather together, by one, two, and three.

And every man will spend his penny,
What makes such a show among a great many ? Bis.

ALL IN A GARDEN GREEN

Moderato

All in a garden green Two lovers sat at ease, As they could scarce be seen A - mong, a - mong the leafy trees. They long had lov'd y - fore,

And no longer than truly, In that time of the year,

In that time of the year Cometh 'twixt May and July.

Quoth he, "Most lovely maid,
My troth shall aye endure;
And be not thou afraid,
But rest thee still secure,

"That I will love thee long
As life in me shall last;
Now I am young and strong,
And when my youth is past.

"When I am grey and old,
And then must stoop to age,
I'll love thee twenty-fold,
My troth I here engage."

She heard with joy the youth,
When he thus far had gone ;
She trusted in his truth,
And, loving, he went on :

“ Yonder thou see'st the sun
Shine in the sky so bright,
And when this day is done,
Then cometh the dark night,

“ No sooner night is not,
But he returns alway,
And shines as bright and hot
As on this gladsome day.

“ He is no older now
Than when he first was born ;
Age cannot make him bow,
He laughs old Time to scorn.

“ My love shall be the same,
It never shall decay,
But shine without all blame,
Though body turn to clay.”

She listened to his song,
And heard it with a smile,
And, innocent as young,
She dreamed not of guile.

No guile he meant, I ween,
For he was true as steel,
As was there after seen,
When she made him her weal.

Full soon both two were wed,
And these most faithful lovers,
May serve at board at bed,
Example to all others.

THE MAY-POLE.

Come, ye young men, come a - long, With your music,

dance and song; Bring your lasses in your hands,

For 'tis that which love commands. Then to the May-pole come a - way, For it is now a ho - li - day.

It is the choice time of the year,
 For the violets now appear;
 Now the rose receives its birth,
 And pretty primrose decks the earth.
 Then to the May-pole come away,
 For it is now a holiday.

Here each bachelor may choose
 One that will not faith abuse;
 Nor repay with coy disdain
 Love that should be lov'd again.
 Then to the May-pole come away,
 For it is now a holiday.

And when you well reckoned have,
 What kisses you your sweethearts gave,
 Take them all again, and more,
 It will never make them poor.
 Then to the May-pole come away,
 For it is now a holiday.

When you thus have spent the time,
 Till the day be past its prime,
 To your beds repair at night,
 And dream there of your day's delight.
 Then to the May-pole haste away,
 For it is a holiday.

THE FAIRY QUEEN

Come, follow, follow me, Ye fairy elves that be, Come follow Mab your queen, And trip it o'er the green, Hand in hand we'll dance a - round, Because this place is fairy ground.

When mortals are at rest,
 And snoring in their nest,
 Unheard and unespied,
 Through key-holes we do glide ;
 Over tables, stools, and shelves,
 We trip it, with our fairy elves.

And, if the house be foul
 With platter, dish, or bowl.
 Up stairs we nimbly creep
 And find the sluts asleep :
 Then we pinch their arms and thighs,
 None us hears, nor none espies.

But if the house be swept,
 And from uncleanness kept,

We praise the household maid,
And duly she is paid :
Every night before we go,
We drop a tester in her shoe.

Then o'er a mushroom's head
Our table-cloth we spread ;
A grain of rye or wheat,
The diet that we eat ;
Pearly drops of dew we drink
In acorn cups fill'd 'o the brink.

The brains of nightingales,
With unctuous fat of snails,
Between two cockles stew'd,
Is meat that's easily chew'd ;
Tails of worms and marrow of mice
Do make a dish that's wonderous nice.

The grasshopper, gnat, and fly,
Serve for our minstrelsy
Grace said, we dance awhile
And so the time beguile :
And if the moon doth hide her head,
The glow-worm lights us home to bed.

O'er tops of dewy grass
So nimbly we do pass,
The young and tender stalk
Ne'er bends where we do walk :
Yet in the morning may be seen
Where we the night before have been.

AS I WALKED FORTH

Andantino

As I walk'd forth one Summer's day

To view the meadows sweet and gay, A pleasant bower I espied, Standing fast by a river side, And in't a maiden I heard cry,

A - las A - las, there's none e'er lov'd as I!

Then round the meadow did she walk,
 Catching each flower by the stalk,
 Such flowers as in the meadow grew,
 The dead man's thumb, an herb all blue,
 And as she pull'd them, still cried she,
 Alas, alas, none ever lov'd like me.

When she had fill'd her apron full,
 Of such green things as she could cull,
 The green leaves serv'd her for a bed,
 The flow'rs were the pillow for her head:
 Then down she lay, ne'er more did speak
 Alas, alas, with love her heart did break.

I TELL THEE, DICK, WHERE I HAVE BEEN

Andante

I tell thee, Dick, where I have been, Where I the rarest things have seen, Oh! things beyond compare; Such sights a - gain cannot be found In any place on English ground, Be it at wake or fair.

At Charing Cross hard by the way
 Where we (thou know'st) do sell our hay,
 There is a house with stairs;
 And there did I see coming down
 Such folk as are not in our town,
 Forty at least in pairs.

Among the rest one pest'lent fine,
 (His beard no bigger, though, than thine)
 Walk'd on before the rest:
 Our landlord looks like nothing to him,
 The king, (God bless him!) 'twould undo him,
 Should he go still so dress'd.

The maid—and thereby hangs a tale,
 For such a maid no Whitsun ale
 Could ever yet produce:

No grape that's kindly ripe could be
So round, so plump, so soft as she,
Nor half so full of juice.

Her finger was so small, the ring
Would not stay on which they did bring,
It was too wide a peck ;
And to say truth, (for out it must)
It look'd like the great collar, (just,)
About our young colt's neck.

Her feet beneath her petticoat,
Like little mice stole in and out,
As if they fear'd the light ;
But oh ! she dances such a way,
No sun upon an Easter-day
Is half so fine a sight.

Her cheeks so rare a white was on,
No daisy makes comparison ;
(Who sees them is undone.)
For streaks of red were mingled there,
Such as are on a Kath'rine pear,
The side that's next the sun.

Her lips were red, and one was thin,
Compar'd to that was next her chin ;
Some bee had stung it newly ;
But, Dick, her eyes so guard her face,
I durst no more upon them gaze,
Than on the sun in July.

Words by Sir John Suckling.

WHEN FORCED FROM DEAR HEBE TO GO

Andante

When forc'd from dear Hebe to go, What anguish I felt at my heart! And I thought, but it might not be so, She was sorry to see me depart; She cast such a languishing view, My path I could scarcely dis - cern, So sweetly she bade me a - dieu, I thought that she bade me return, I thought that she bade me re - turn.

I thought she might like to retire
To the grove I had labour'd to rear ;
For whatever I heard her admire,
I hasten'd and planted it there.
Her voice such a pleasure conveys,
So much I her accents adore,
Let her speak, and whatever she says,
I'm sure still to love her the more.

And now, ere I haste to the plain,
Come, shepherds, and talk of her ways :
I could lay down my life for the swain
That would sing me a song in her praise.
While he sings may the maids of the town
Come flocking and listen awhile ;
Nor on him let Hebe once frown, —
But I cannot allow her to smile.

To see, when my charmer goes by,
Some hermit peep out of his cell ;
How he thinks of his youth with a sigh,
How fondly he wishes her well.
On him she may smile if she please,
'Twill warm the cold bosom of age ;
But cease, gentle Hebe, oh ! cease, —
Such softness will ruin the sage.

I've stole from no flow'rets that grow
To paint the dear charms I approve,
For what can a blossom bestow,
So sweet, so delightful, as love ?
I sing in a rustical way,
A shepherd and one of the throng ;
Yet, Hebe approves of my lay ;—
Go poets, and envy my song.

CONTENTED WI' LITTLE

Allegretto

Con - tented wi' little, and cantie wi' mair, When e'er I for - gath - er wi' sor - row and care, I gie them a skelp as they're creepin' a - lang, Wi'a cog o' gude swats, and an auld Scottish sang. I whylesclaw the el - bow o' trouble - some thought; But Man is a so - ger, and Life is a faught: My

 Freedom's my lairdship nae monarch dare touch.

A towmond o' trouble, should that be my fa',
 A night o' gude fellowship sowthers it a';
 When at the blythe end of our journey at last,
 Wha the deil ever thinks o' the road he has past?

Blind Chance, let her snapper and stoyte on her way,
 Be't to me, be't frae me, e'en let the jad gae:
 Come ease, or come travail; come pleasure or pain,
 My warst word is—"Welcome, and welcome again!"

HERE AWA, THERE AWA

Larghetto

Here a - wa, there a - wa, wandering Willie,

Here a - wa, there a - wa, haud a - wa, hame; Lang have I sought thee, dear have I bought thee, Now have I gotten my Willie a - gain.

Through the lang muir have I followed my Willie,
 Through the lang muir I have follow'd him hame.
 Whate'er betide us, naught shall divide us;
 Love now rewards all my sorrow and pain.

Here awa, there awa, wandering Willie,
 Here awa, there awa, here awa, hame!
 Come, Love, believe me, nothing can grieve me,
 Ilka thing pleases while Willie's at hame.

HOW LANG AND DREARY IS THE NIGHT

Andante

How lang and dreary is the night, When I am frae my dearie; I rest-less lie frae e'en to morn, Tho' I were ne'er sae weary. For oh, her lanely nights are lang; And oh, her dreams are eerie; And oh, her widow'd heart is sair, That's absent frae her dearie.

When I think on the lightsome days
 I spent wi' thee, my dearie,
 And now that seas between us roar,
 How can I be but eerie!
 For oh, &c.

How slow ye move, ye heavy hours;
 The joyless day how drearie!

It wasna sae ye glinted by ;
 When I was wi' my dearie,
 For oh! &c.

I GAED A WAEFU' GATE YESTREEN

Andante

I gaed a wae - fu' gate yes - treen, A gate, I fear, I'll dearly rue; I gat my death frae twa sweet een, Twa lovely een o' bon-ie blue.

'Twas not her golden ringlets bright,
 Her lips like roses wat wi' dew,
 Her heaving bosom lily-white;—
 It was her een sae bonie blue.

She talk'd, she smil'd, my heart she wyl'd,
 She charm'd my soul I wist na how;
 And aye the stound, the deadly wound,
 Cam frae her een sae bonie blue.

But spare to speak, and spare to speed;
 She'll aiblins listen to my vow:
 Should she refuse, I'll lay my dead
 To her twa een sae bonie blue.

O WERE MY LOVE YON LILAC FAIR

Andante

O were my Love yon li-lac fair, Wi' pur-ple blossoms to the spring; And I, a bird to shelter there, When wearied on my lit-tle wing; How I wad mourn, when it was torn By autumn wild, and winter rude! But I wad sing on wanton wing, When youthfu' May its bloom renew'd.

O gin my love were yon red rose
 That grows upon the castle wa',
 And I mysel' a drap o' dew,
 Into her bonie breast to fa'!

Oh, there beyond expression blest,
 I'd feast on beauty a' the night;
 Seal'd on her silk-saft faulds to rest,
 Till fley'd awa' by Phoebus' light.

THE LASS OF PATIE'S MILL

Andantino

The lass of Patie's mill, So bonie blythe and gay, In spite of all my skill, She stole my heart a - way. When ted - ding of the hay, Bare head - ed on the green, Love midst her locks did play, And wanton'd in her e'en.

Without the help of art,
 Like flow'rs that grace the wild,
 She did her sweets impart,
 Whene'er she spoke or smil'd.
 Her looks they were so mild,
 Free from affected pride,
 She me to love beguil'd ;
 I wish'd her for my bride.

O, had I all the wealth
 Hopeton's high mountains fill,
 Insur'd long life and health,
 And pleasure at my will ;
 I'd promise and fulfil,
 That none but bonny she,
 The lass of Patie's mill,
 Should share the same wi' me.

O WAS I TO BLAME TO LOVE HIM

O was I to blame to love him! O was I to blame to love him! So gallant, so kind, I could not be blind, I was not to blame to love him!

My heart it may break with sorrow,
 My heart it may break with sorrow,
 'Tis lost for his sake,
 No complaint will I make,
 My heart it may break with sorrow.

O saw you yon tree's sweet blossom,
 O saw you yon tree's sweet blossom,
 Like me to your sight,
 It fades with the blight,
 Yet blame not the love or blossom.

O pride of my heart, I love thee,
 O pride of my heart, I love thee;
 The zephyr,—the sky
 May alter—not I—

I was not to blame to love thee.

SAW YE NAE MY PEGGY

Saw ye nae my Peg - gy, Saw ye nae my Peg - gy, Saw ye nae my Peg - gy, Com - ing o'er the lea? Sure a finer crea - ture Ne'er was form'd by na - ture, So com-plete each fea - ture, So di-

O how Peggy charms me ;
 Every look still warms me,
 Every thought alarms me,
 Lest she love not me :
 Peggy doth discover,
 Nought but charms all over ;
 Nature bids me love her,
 That's a law to me.

Who would leave a lover,
 To become a rover ?
 No, I'll ne'er give over,
 Till I happy be.

For since love inspires me,
 As her beauty fires me,
 And her absence tires me,
 Nought can please but she.

When I hope to gain her,
 Fate seems to detain her,
 Could I but obtain her,
 Happy should I be !
 I'll lie down before her,
 Bless, sigh, and adore her,
 With faint looks implore her,
 'Till she pity me.

AULD ROB MORRIS

Andante

There's auld Rob Morris that wons in yon glen, He's the king o' gude fellows and wale of auld men, He has gowd in his coffers, he has owsen and kine, And ae bonie lassie, his dar-ling and mine.

She's fresh as the morning, the fairest in May,
 She's sweet as the evening amang the new hay ;
 As blythe and as artless as the lamb on the lea,
 And dear to my heart as the light to my e'e.

But oh, she's an heiress, auld Robin's a laird,
 And my daddie has nought but a cot-house and yard ;
 A rover like me maunna hope to come speed ;
 The wounds I maun hide which will soon be my dead.

The day comes to me, but delight brings me nane,
 The night comes to me, but my rest it is gane ;
 I wander my lane, like a night-troubled ghaist,
 And I sigh, as my heart it wad burst in my breast.

O had she but been of a lower degree,
 I then might hae hop'd she wad smil'd upon me ;
 O, how past discribing had then been my bliss,
 As now my distraction no words can express.

Tho' hurricanes rise, and raise every wind,
 They'll ne'er make a tempest like that in my mind ;
 Tho' loudest of thunders on louder waves roar,
 That's naething like leaving my Love on the shore.
 To leave thee behind me my heart is sore pain'd,
 But by ease that's inglorious no fame can be gain'd ;
 And beauty and love's the reward of the brave,
 And I maun deserve it before I can crave.

Then glory, my Jeanie, maun plead my excuse ;
 Since honour commands me, how can I refuse ?
 Without it, I ne'er can have merit for thee,
 And losing thy favour, I'd better not be.
 I gae then, my lass, to win honour and fame,
 And if I should chance to come gloriously hame,
 I'll bring a heart to thee with love running o'er,
 And then I'll leave thee and Lochaber no more.

My Nanie's charming, sweet, an' young;
Nae artfu' wiles to win ye, O:
May ill befa' the flattering tongue
That wad beguile my Nanie, O.

Her face is fair, her heart is true,
As spotless as she's bonie, O :
The op'ning gowan, wat wi' dew,
Nae purer is than Nanie, O.

A country lad is my degree,
An' few there be that ken me, O ;
But what care I how few they be,
I'm welcome aye to Nanie, O.

My riches a's my penny-fee,
An' I maun guide it cannie, O ;
But warl's gear ne'er troubles me,
My thoughts are a', my Nanie, O.

Our auld Guidman delights to view

But I'm as blithe that hauds his pleugh,
An' has nae care but Nanie, O.

Come weel, come woe, I care na by,

I'm thinking, wi' sic a braw fallow,
 In poortith I might mak a fen';
 What care I in riches to wallow,
 If I maunna marry Tam Glen?

There's Lowrie the laird o' Dumeller,
 'Guid-day to you, brute!' he comes ben:
 He brags and he blows o' his siller,
 But when will he dance like Tam Glen?

My minnie does constantly deave me,

But wha can think sae o' Tam Glen ?

My daddie says, gin I'll forsake him,
He'll gie me guid hunder marks ten :
But, if it's ordain'd I maun take him,
O wha will I get but Tam Glen ?

Yestreen at the Valentines' dealing,

And thrice it was written, Tam Glen.

The last Halloween I was waukin
My droukit sark-sleeve, as ye ken ;
His likeness cam up the house staukin—
And the very grey breeks o' Tam Glen !

Come counsel, dear Tittie, don't tarry ;

THE BUSH ABOON TRAQUAIR.

Hear me, ye nymphs, and ev - 'ry swain, I'll tell how Peg-gy grieves me; Tho' thus I languish, thus complain, A - las! she ne'er be-lieves me. My vows and sighs, like si - lent air, Un - heeded ne - ver move her: The bon - ie bush a - boon Traquair, 'Twas

there I first did love her.

That day she smiled, and made me glad,

No maid seem'd ever kinder :

I thought myself the luckiest lad,

So sweetly there to find her ;

I tried to soothe my amorous flame,
In words that I thought tender ;
If more there pass'd, I'm not to blame,
I meant not to offend her.

Yet now she scornful flies the plain,
The fields we then frequented :
If e'er we meet, she shows disdain,
She looks as ne'er acquainted.

The bonny bush bloomed fair in May,
It's sweets I'll aye remember :
But now her frowns make it decay,
It fades as in December.

Ye rural powers who hear my strains,
Why thus should Peggy grieve me ?
O make her partner in my pains,
Then let her smiles relieve me :

If not, my love will turn despair,
My passion no more tender ;
I'll leave the Bush aboon Traquair,
To lonely wilds I'll wander.

TAKE THY OLD CLOAK ABOUT THEE

Andante

This Winter's weather waxeth cold, And frost shall freeze on ev-'ry hill, And Boreas blows his blasts so bold, That all our cattle are like to spill; Then Bell my wife, who loves no strife, She said un-to me quiet-ly, Rise up and save Cow Crumbock's life, Man put thine old cloak a-bout thee.

HE.

O Bell why dost thou flyte and scorn?
 Thou kenst my cloak is very thin:
 It is so bare and overworn,
 A cricke lie thereon cannot renn:

Then I'll no longer borrow nor lend,
For once I'll new apparel'd be ;
To morrow I'll to town and spend,
For I'll have a new cloak about me.

SHE.

Cow Crumbock is a very good cow,
She has been always true to the pail,
Still has helped us to butter and cheese I trow,
And other things she will not fail.
I would be loth to see her pine,
Good husband, counsel take of me,
It is not for us to go so fine,
Then take thine old cloak about thee.

HE.

My cloak it was a very good cloak,
It hath been always true to the wear,
But now it is not worth a groat ;
I have had it four and forty year.
Sometime it was of cloth in grain,
'Tis now but a sigh-clout as you may see,
It will neither hold out wind nor rain,
I'll have a new cloak about me.

SHE.

It is four and forty years ago,
Since th'one of us the other did ken,
And we have had bewixt us two,
Of children either nine or ten ;
We have brought them up to be women and men ;
In the fear of God I trow they be ;
And why wilt thou thyself misken ?
Man take thine old cloak about thee.

HE.

O Bell my wife why dost thou flout,
 Now is now, and then was then ;
 Seek now all the world throughout,
 Thou kenst not clowns from gentlemen.
 They are clad in black, green, yellow, or grey,
 So far above their own degree,
 Once in my life I'll do as they,
 For I'll have a new cloak about me.

SHE.

King Stephen was a worthy peer,
 His breeches cost him but a crown ;
 He held them sixpence all too dear,
 Therefore he called the tailor lown.
 He was a wight of high renown,
 And thouse but of a low degree ;
 It's pride that puts the country down,
 Then take thine old cloak about thee.

HE.

Bell my wife she loves not strife,
 Yet she will lead me if she can,
 And oft to lead a quiet life,
 I'm forc'd to yield though I'm good-man.
 It's not for a man with a woman to threap,
 Unless he first give o'er the plea ;
 Where I began I now mun leave,
 And take mine old cloak about me.

THE BONIE BANKS OF AYR

Lento

The gloomy night is gath - 'ring fast, Loud roars the wild in - con - stant blast, Yon murky cloud is foul with rain, I see it driving o'er the plain ;

The hunter now has left the moor,
 The scatter'd coveys meet secure,
 While here I wander, prest with care,
 Along the lonely banks of Ayr.

The Autumn mourns her rip'ning corn
 By early Winter's ravage torn ;
 Across her placid azure sky,
 She sees the scowling tempest fly :

Chill runs my blood to hear it rave,
I think upon the stormy wave,
Where many a danger I must dare,
Far from the bonie banks of Ayr.

'Tis not the surging billow's roar,
'Tis not that fatal, deadly shore ;
Tho' death in ev'ry shape appear,
The wretched have no more to fear :

But round my heart the ties are bound,
That heart transpierc'd by many a wound :
These bleed afresh, those ties I tear,
To leave the bonie banks of Ayr.

Farewell, old Coila's hills and dales,
Her heathy moors and winding vales ;
The scenes where wretched fancy roves,
Pursuing past, unhappy loves !

Farewell, my friends ! Farewell, my foes !
My peace with these, my love with those—
The bursting tears my heart declare,
Farewell, the bonie banks of Ayr.

Wha wad na be in love Wi' bonie Maggy speir'd what was't they ca'd her. Right scornfully she answer'd him, "Be-gone, you hal-len-shaker, Jog on your gate, you bladderskate, My name is Maggy Lauder."

"Maggie," quo' he, "and by my bags,
 I'm fiding fain to see thee ;
 Sit down by me, my bonie bird,
 In troth I winna steer thee :

For I'm a piper to my trade,
My name is Rob the Ranter ;
The lasses loup as they were daft,
When I blaw up my chanter."

"Piper," quo' Meg, "ha'e ye your bags,
Or is your drone in order ?
If you be Rob, I've heard of you ;
Live you upo' the border ?
The lasses a', baith far and near,
Have heard of Rob the Ranter ;
I'll shake my foot wi' right good-will,
Gif you'll blaw up your chanter."

Then to his bags he flew with speed,
About the drone he twisted ;
Meg up, and wallop'd o'er the green,
For brawly could she frisk it.
"Weel done," quo' he, "Play up," quo' she :
"Weel bobb'd," quo' Rob the Ranter ;
"It's worth my while to play indeed,
When I ha'e sic a dancer."

"Weel ha'e you play'd your part," quo' Meg,
"Your cheeks are like the crimson ;
There's nane in Scotland plays sae weel,
Since we lost Habby Simson.
I've liv'd in Fife, baith maid and wife,
These ten years and a quarter ;
Gin you should come to Anst'er fair,

MY BOY TAMMY

Andante

Whar hae ye been a' day, my boy
 Tammy? Whar hae ye been a' day, my boy
 Tammy? I've been by burn and flow - 'ry brae Meadow green, and mountain grey, Courting o' this young thing, Just come frae her Mammy.

And whar gat ye that young thing,
 My boy Tammy?
 I gat her down in yonder how,
 Smiling on a broomy know,
 Herding ae wee lamb and ewe,
 For her poor mammy.

What said ye to the bonie bairn,
 My boy Tammy?

I praised her e'en, sae lovely blue,
Her dimpled cheek, and cherry mou ;
I pree'd it aft, as ye may trow, —
She said she'd tell her mammy.

I held her to my beating heart,
My young, my smiling lammy !
“ I hae a house, it cost me dear,
I've walth o' plenishin and gear ;
Ye'se get it a' wer't ten times mair,
Gin ye will leave your mammy.”

The smile gaed off her bonie face,—
“ I maunna leave my mammy :
She's gi'en me meat she's gi'en me claise,
She's been my comfort a' my days,
My father's death brought many waes,—
I canna leave my mammy.”

“ We'll tak' her hame and mak' her fain,
My ain kind-hearted lammy !
We'll gie her meat, we'll gie her claise,
We'll be her comfort a' her days,”—
The wee thing gies her hand and says,
“ There gang and ask my mammy.”

Has she been to kirk wi' thee,
My boy Tammy ?
She has been to kirk wi' me,
And the tear was in her e'e,
But oh ! she's but a young thing,
Just come from her mammy.

WILL YE GO TO THE EWE-BUGHTS

Andante

Will ye go to the ewe-bughts, Marion, And wear in the sheep wi' me? The sun shines sweet, my Marion, But nae half sae sweet as thee. The sun shines sweet, my Marion, But nae half sae sweet as thee.

O Marion's a borie lass,
 And the blyth blinks in her e'e;
 And fain wad I marry Marion,
 Gin Marion wad marry me.

I've nine milk ewes my Marion
 A cow and a brawny quey;
 I'll gi'e them a' to my Marion,
 Upon her bridal-day.

And ye's get a green sey apron,
 And waist-coat o' London brown;
 And wow but ye will be vap'ring,
 Whene'er ye gang to the town.

I'm young and stout my Marion,
 Nane dances like me on the green;
 And gin ye forsake me, Marion,
 I'll e'en draw up wi' Jean.

WILL YE GO TO FLANDERS

Moderato

Will ye go to Flanders, my Mal - ly, O?
 will ye go to Flanders, my bon - nie Mal - ly, O? Then we'll get wine and bran - dy, And sack and su - gar can - dy; Will ye go to Flanders, my Mal - ly, O?

Will ye go to Flanders, my Mally, O?
 And see the chief commanders, my Mally, O?
 You'll see the bullets fly,
 And the soldiers how they die,
 And the ladies loudly cry, my Mally, O!

O STAY SWEET WARBLING WOOD-LARK

Grazioso

O stay, sweet warbling wood-lark, stay, Nor quit for me the trembling spray, A hap-less lover courts thy lay, Thy soothing fond com - plaining. A - gain, a - gain that ten - der part, That I may catch thy melting art, For sure - ly that wad touch her heart, Wha

Say, was thy little mate unkind,
And heard thee as the careless wind ?
Oh, nocht but love and sorrow join'd
Sic notes o' wae could wauken.
Thou tells o' never-ending care ;
O' speechless grief, and dark despair ;
For pity's sake, sweet bird, nae mair !
Or my poor heart is broken !

LOGIE O' BUCHAN

Andante

O Logie o' Buchan, O Logie, the Laird, They hae ta'en a-wa Jamie that delv'd in the yard; Wha play'd on the pipe and the vi - ol sae sma'; They hae ta'en a-wa Jamie the flow'r o' them a'. He said, "Think na lang, Lassie, tho' I gang awa'; For I'll come and see thee in spite o' them a'."

Though Sandy has ousen, has gear, and has kye,
A house and a haddin and siller forby;
Yet I'd take my ain lad wi' his staff in his hand,
Before I'd hae him with his houses and land.

He said, "Think nae lang," &c.

My daddy looks sulky, my minny looks sour,
They frown upon Jamie, because he is poor;

Th' I lo'e them as well as a daughter should do,
They're nae half sae dear to me, Jamie, as you.
He said, "Think nae lang," &c.

I sit on my creepie and spin at my wheel,
And think on the laddie that lo'es me sae weel;
He had but ae saxpence, he brak it in twa,
And he gied me the ha'f o't, when he gaed awa'.
Then haste ye back, Jamie, and bide na awa',
Then haste ye back, Jamie, and bide na awa';
The simmer is coming, cauld winter's awa',
And ye'll come and see me in spite o' them a'.

THERE'S NAE LUCK ABOUT THE HOUSE

Allegro Vivace

And are ye sure the news is true? And are ye sure he's well? Is this a time to think o' wark? Ye jauds, fling by your wheel, Is this a time to think o' wark, When Colin's at the door? Rax down my cloak, I'll to the quay, And see him come a - shore. For there's nae luck a - bout the house, There's nae luck at a', There's nae luck a - bout the house, When our guidman's a - wa'.

Rise up and make a clean fire-side,
Put on the mickle pat ;
Gie little Kate her cotton gown,
And Jock his Sunday's coat.
And make their shoon as black as slaes,
Their stockins white as snaw ;
It's a' to pleasure our guidman,
He likes to see them braw.
Cho. For there's nae luck, &c.

There are twa hens into the crib,
Ha'e fed this month and mair,
Mak haste and thraw their necks about
That Colin weel may fare.
My Turkey slippers I'll put on,
My stockins pearl blue ;
It's a' to pleasure our guidman,
For he's baith leal and true.
Cho. For there's nae luck, &c.

Sae sweet his voice, sae smooth his tongue,
His breath's like cauler air ;
His very fit has music in't,
As he comes up the stair.
And will I see his face again ?
And will I hear him speak ?
I'm downright dizzy wi' the thought ;
In truth I'm like to greet.
Cho. For there's nae luck, &c.

THE BOATIE ROWS

Allegretto

O weel may the boat - ie row, And bet - ter may she speed! And weel may the boat - ie row, That wins the bairns' bread. The boatie rows, the boatie rows, The boatie rows in - deed! And hap - py be the lot of a', That wishes her to speed!

I cuist my line in Largo Bay
And fishes I caught nine;
There's three to boil, and three to fry,
And three to bait the line.
The boatie rows, &c.

O weel may the boatie row
That fills a heavy creel,
And cleads us a' frae head to feet,
And buys our parritch-meal.
The boatie rows, &c.

When Jamie vow'd he would be mine,
And won frae me my heart,
O muckle lighter grew my creel !
He swore we'd never part.
The boatie rows, the boatie rows,
The boatie rows fu' weel ;
And muckle lighter is the lade
When love bears up the creel.

My kurch I put upon my head,
And dressed mysel fu' braw ;
I trow my heart was douf and wae,
When Jamie gaed awa' ;
But weel may the boatie row,
And lucky be her part ;
And lightsome be the lassie's care
That yields an honest heart !

When Sawnie, Jock, and Janetie
Are up and gotten lear,
They'll help to gar the boatie row,
And lighten a' our care.
The boatie rows, the boatie rows,
The boatie rows fu' weel ;
And lightsome be her heart that bears
The murlain and the creel !

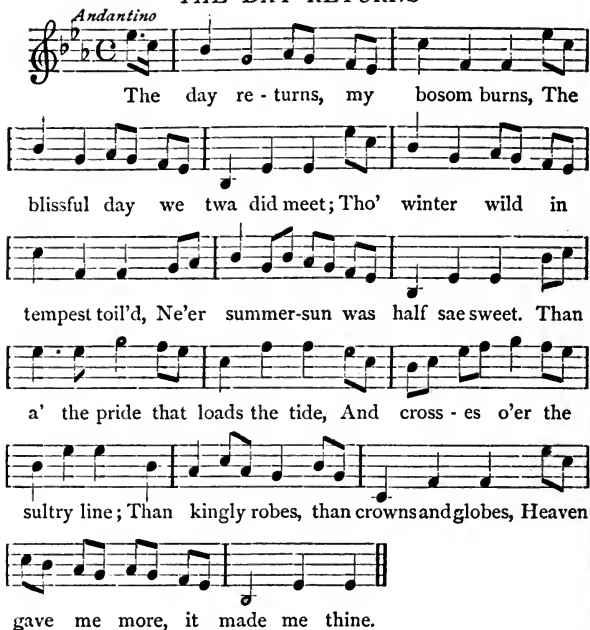

And when wi' age we're worn down,
And hirpling round the door,
They'll row, to keep us hale and warm,
As we did them before.
Then weel may the boatie row,
That wins the bairns' bread,
And happy be the lot of a',
That wish the boat to speed !

THE DAY RETURNS

Andantino

The day re - turns, my bosom burns, The blissful day we twa did meet; Tho' winter wild in tempest toil'd, Ne'er summer-sun was half sae sweet. Than a' the pride that loads the tide, And cross - es o'er the sultry line; Than kingly robes, than crowns and globes, Heaven gave me more, it made me thine.

While day and night can bring delight,
 Or nature aught of pleasure give;
 While joys above my mind can move,
 For thee, and thee alone, I live!
 When that grim foe of life below
 Comes in between to make us part;
 The iron hand that breaks our band,
 It breaks my bliss—it breaks my heart.

THE YELLOW-HAIRED LADDIE

Andantino

The yellow-hair'd lad-die sat on yon burn brae, Cries milk the ewes, Las-sie, let nane o' them sung, The yel-low hair'd lad-die shall be my guid-

The weather is cauld, and my cleadin' is thin,
The ewes are new clipp'd, they winna bught in;
They winna bught in, although I should dee,
O yellow-hair'd laddie, be kind unto me.

They winna bught in, &c.

The guid-wife cries but the house "Jenny come ben,
The cheese is to mak, and the butter's to kirn;"
Though butter and cheese and a' should go sour,
I'll crack wi' my love for another half hour,
Ae half hour, and will e'en mak it three,
For the yellow-hair'd laddie my husband shall be.

Da Capo in Chorus.

There sat a bottle in a bole,
 Beyond the ingle low,
 And aye she took the tither souk
 To drouk the stowrie tow.

Quoth I, For shame, ye dirty dame,
 Gae spin your tap o' tow!
 She took the rock, and wi' a knock
 She brak it o'er my pow.

At last her feet—I sang to see't—
 Gaed foremost o'er the knowe;
 And or I wad anither jad,

Jeany was the lassie that muckit the byre,
 But now she is clad in her silken attire ;
 And Jockie says he lo'es her, and me has forgot,
 May the shame fa' the gear and the blethrie o't !

But all this shall never daunt on me,

FOR A' THAT AND A' THAT

Is there, for hon - est pov - er - ty, That hangs his head, and a' that? The co - ward slave, we pass him by, We dare be poor for a' that! For a' that, and a' that, Our toils ob - scure, and a' that; The rank is but the guinea stamp; The man's the gowd for a' that.

What tho' on hamely fare we dine,
 Wear hodden-grey, and a' that;
 Gie fools their silks, and knaves their wine,
 A man's a man for a' that.

For a' that, and a' that,
Their tinsel show, and a' that ;
The honest man, tho' e'er sae poor,
Is King o' men for a' that.

Ye see yon birkie ca'd a lord,
Wha struts, and stares, and a' that ;
Tho' hundreds worship at his word,
He's but a coof for a' that :
For a' that, and a' that,
His riband, star, and a' that,
The man of independent mind,
He looks and laughs at a' that.

A prince can mak a belted knight,
A marquis, duke, and a' that ;
But an honest man's aboon his might,
Guid faith he mauna fa' that !
For a' that, and a' that,
Their dignities, and a' that,
The pith o' sense, and pride o' worth,
Are higher rank than a' that.

Then let us pray that come it may,
As come it will for a' that ;'
That sense and worth, o'er a' the earth
May bear the gree, and a' that,
For a' that, and a' that,

THE LAST TIME I CAM O'ER THE MUIR

Larghetto

The last time I cam o'er the muir, I left my love be - hind me; Ye powers! what pains do I endure, When soft i - de - as mind me! Soon as the ruddy morn dis-play'd, The beaming day ensuing, I met betimes my love - ly maid, In fit re - treats for wooing.

Beneath the cooling shades we lay,
Gazing and chastely sporting,
Until the sun's last setting ray
Was in the ocean glowing.

I pitied all beneath the skies,
Even kings, when she was nigh me ;
In raptures I beheld her eyes
Which could but ill deny me.

Should I be called where cannons roar,
Where mortal steel may wound me,
Or cast upon some foreign shore,
Where dangers may surround me ;
Yet hopes again to see my love,
To feast on glowing kisses,
Shall make my cares at distance move,
In prospect of such blisses.

In all my soul there's not one place
To let a rival enter :
Since she excels in every grace,
In her my love shall centre.
Sooner the seas shall cease to flow,
Their waves the Alps shall cover,
On Greenland's ice shall roses grow,
Before I cease to love her.

The neist time I gang o'er the muir,
She shall a lover find me ;
And that my faith is firm and pure,
Though I left her behind me ;
Then Hymen's sacred bonds shall chain
My heart to her fair bosom ;
There, while my being does remain,
My love more fresh shall blossom.

O WALY, WALY

Larghetto

O wa - ly, wa - ly up the bank, And waly, waly down the brae, And waly, waly yon burnside, Where I and my love went to gae! I lean'd my back un - to an aik, I thought it was a trusty tree; But first it bow'd and syne it brak: Sae my true love did lightly me.

Oh waly, waly, but love be bonnic,
 A little time while it is new;
 But when it's auld it waxes cauld,
 And fades away like the morning dew.

O wherefore should I busk my heid,
Or wherefore should I kame my hair?
For my true love has me forsook,
And says he'll never love me mair.

Now Arthur's Seat shall be my bed,
The sheets shall ne'er be press'd by me,
St. Anton's well shall be my drink,
Since my true love has forsaken me.
O Mart'mas wind, when wilt thou blow,
And shake the green leaves off the tree?
O, gentle death, when wilt thou come?
For of my life I am wearie!

'Tis not the frost that freezes fell,
Nor blawing snaw's inclemencie;
'Tis not sic cauld that makes me cry:
But my love's heart's grown cauld to me.
When we came in by Glasgow town,
We were a comely sicht to see;
My love was clad in black velvet,
And I mysel in cramasie.

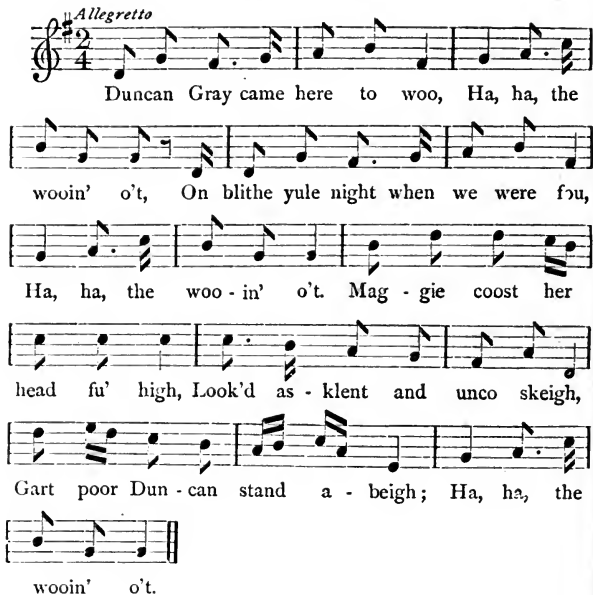

But had I wist, before I kissed,
That love had been sae ill to win,
I'd lock'd my heart in a case of gold,
And pinn'd it wi' a siller pin.
Oh, oh! if my young babe were born,
And set upon his nurse's knee,
And I mysel were dead and gane,
And the green grass growin' over me!

DUNCAN GRAY

Allegretto

Duncan Gray came here to woo, Ha, ha, the woin' o't, On blithe yule night when we were fou, Ha, ha, the woo-in' o't. Mag-gie coost her head fu' high, Look'd as-klent and unco skeigh, Gart poor Dun-can stand a-beigh; Ha, ha, the woin' o't.

Duncan fleech'd, and Duncan pray'd ;
Ha, ha, the woin' o't ;
Meg was deaf as Ailsa Craig,
Ha, ha, the woin' o't.

Duncan sigh'd baith out and in,
Grat his een baith bleer't and blin',
Spak o' lowpin o'er a linn ;
 Ha, ha, the woin' o't.

Time and chance are but a tide,
 Ha, ha, the woin' o't ;
Slighted love is sair to bide,
 Ha, ha, the woin' o't.
Shall I, like a fool, quoth he,
For a haughty hizzie dee ?
She may gae to—France for me !
 Ha, ha, the woin' o't.

How it comes, let doctors tell,
 Ha, ha, the woin' o't ;
Meg grew sick—as he grew well,
 Ha, ha, the woin' o't.
Something in her bosom wrings,
For relief a sigh she brings ;
And O, her een, they spak sic things !
 Ha, ha, the woin' o't.

Duncan was a lad o' grace,
 Ha, ha, the woin' o't ;
Maggie's was a piteous case,
 Ha, ha, the woin' o't.
Duncan couldna be her death,
Swelling pity smoor'd his wrath ;
Now they're crouse and cantie baith !
 Ha, ha, the woin' o't.

MY LOVE BUILT ME A BONNIE BOWER

Lento

My Love built me a bon - nie bower, And clad it a' wi' li - ly flow'r; A brow - er bower ye ne'er did see, Than my true lo - ver built for me.

There cam a man at mid-day hour,
 He heard my song and he saw my bower,
 And he brocht armed men that nicht,
 And brak my bower and slew my knicht.

He slew my knicht, to me sae dear,
 And burnt my bower, and drave my gear;
 My servants a' for life did flee,
 And left me in extremitie.

I sew'd his sheet and made my mane,
 I watch'd his corpse, myself alane;
 I watch'd by nicht and I watch'd by day,
 No living creature cam that way.

I bore his body on my back,
 And whyles I went, and whyles I sat;
 I digg'd a grave and laid him in,
 And happ'd him wi' the sod sae green.

But think na ye my heart was sair,
 When I laid the mou' on his yellow hair?
 Oh, think na ye my heart was wae,
 When I turn'd about awa' to gae?

The man lives not I'll love again,
 Since that my comely knicht is slain;
 Wi' ae lock of his yellow hair
 I'll bind my heart for evermair.

MARY MORISON

Andantino

O Mary, at thy window be, It is the wish'd, the trysted hour! Those smiles and glances let me see, That make the miser's treasure poor; How blithely wad I bide the stoure, A weary slave frae sun to sun; Could
I the rich re-ward se- cure, The lovely Mary
Mor - i - son.

Yestreen, when to the trembling string
The dance gaed thro' the lighted ha',
To thee my fancy took its wing,
I sat, but neither heard or saw:
Tho' this was fair, and that was braw,
And yon the toast of a' the town,
I sigh'd, and said amang them a',
'Ye are na Mary Morison.'

O Mary, canst thou wreck his peace,
 Wha for thy sake wad gladly die?
 Or canst thou break that heart of his,
 Whase only faut is loving thee?
 If love for love thou wilt na gie,
 At least be pity to me shown!
 A thought ungentle canna be
 The thought o' Mary Morison.

THE COLLIER LADDIE

Allegretto

“Whare live ye, my bon - ie lass? And tell me what they ca' ye?” “My name” she says “is Mistress Jean, And I follow the Collier Laddie.”

“See ye not yon hills and dales,
 The sun shines on sae brawlie?
 They a' are mine, and they shall be thine,
 Gin ye'll leave your Collier Laddie.”

“If ye had a' the sun shines on,
 And the earth conceals sae lowly,

COMIN' THRO' THE CRAIGS OF KYLE.

Allegretto

Com - in' thro' the craigs of Kyle, Amang the bonie blooming heather, There I met a bonie las - sie keep-in' a' her ewes the - gether.
 O'er the muir a - mang the heather, O'er the muir a - mang the heather, There I met a bon - ie las - sie keepin' a' her ewes the - gether.

Repeat in Chorus.

Said I, "My dear, where is thy hame,
 On moor, or dale, pray tell me whether?"
 She said, "I tent the fleecy flocks
 That feed amang the blooming heather."

O'er the muir amang the heather,
O'er the muir amang the heather,
She said, "I tent the fleecy flocks
That feed amang the blooming heather."

We sat us down upon a bank,
Sae warm and sunny was the weather,
She left her flocks at large to rove
Amang the bonie blooming heather.
O'er the muir amang the heather,
O'er the muir amang the heather,
She left her flocks at large to rove,
Amang the bonie blooming heather.

While thus we sat, she sung a sang,
Till echo rang a mile and farther,
And ay the burden o' the sang
Was—O'er the muir amang the heather.
O'er the muir amang the heather,
O'er the muir amang the heather,
And ay the burden o' the sang
Was—O'er the muir amang the heather.

She charm'd my heart, and ay sinsyne
I could na think on ony ither :
By sea and sky ! she shall be mine !
The bonie lass amang the heather.
O'er the muir amang the heather,
O'er the muir amang the heather,
By sea and sky ! she shall be mine !
The bonie lass amang the heather.

LOW DOWN IN THE BROOM

Moderato

My dad - dy is a can - ker'd carle, He'll nae twine wi' his gear; My Min - nie she's a scolding wife, Hauds a' the house a - steer: But let them say, or let them do, It's a' ane to me, For he's low down, he's in the broom, That's wait - in on me: Wait - in' on me my love, He's wait - in' on me; For he's low down, he's in the broom That's wait - in' on me.

My aunty Kate sits at her wheel,
And sair she lightlies me ;
But well ken I it's a' envy,
For ne'er a Jo has she.
But let them say, or let them do,
It's a' ane to me,
For he's low down, he's in the broom,
That's waitin' on me.

My cousin Kate was sair beguil'd
Wi' Johnny i' the glen,
And ay sinsyne she cries, " Beware
Of false deluding men !"
But let them say, or let them do,
It's a' ane to me,
For he's low down, he's in the broom,
That's waitin' on me.

Gleed Sandy he cam west ae night
And spier'd when saw I Pate ;
And ay sinsyne the neighbours round
They jeer me ear' and late.
But let them say, or let them do,
It's a' ane to me,
For he's low down, he's in the broom,
That's waitin' on me.

LEWIE GORDON

Vivace

O send Lewie Gordon hame, And the lad I daur - na name; Tho' his back be at the war,
Chorus.
 Here's to him that's far a - wa'. Och - on, my High - land - man! O my bon - nie High - land - man!
 Weel would I my true love ken, A-mang ten thousand
 High - land - men.

This lovely youth of whom I sing,
 Is fitted for to be a king;
 On his breast he wears a star;
 You'd tak him for the god of war.

O to see this princely one
 Seated on a royal throne!
 Disasters a' would disappear;
 Then begins the jubilee year.

AND O FOR ANE AND TWENTY, TAM

Allegretto

And O for ane and twen-ty, Tam! And hey, sweet ane and twen-ty; I'll learn my kin a rattling sang, Gin I saw ane and twenty. They snool me sair, and haud me down, And gar me look like bluntie, But three short years will soon wheel round, And then comes ane and twenty.

A glebe o' land, a claut o' gear,
 Was left me by my auntie,
 At kith or kin I needna speir,
 Gin I saw ane-and-twenty.

They'll hae me wed a wealthy coof
 Tho' I myself hae plenty;
 But hear'st thou, laddie, there's my loof,
 I'm thine at ane-and-twenty.

other baw-bee, To ferry me o'er to Charlie. We'll o'er the water and o'er the sea, We'll o'er the water to Charlie; Come weal, come woe, we'll gather and go, And live and die wi' Charlie.

I swear by moon and stars sae bright,
And the sun that glances early,
If I had twenty thousand lives,
I'd risk them a' for Charlie!

I once had sons, I now hae nane,
I bred them, toiling sairly;
And I wad bear them a' again,
And lose them a' for Charlie!

CLXXVIII

I WISH I WERE WHERE HELEN LIES

I wish I were where He - len lies;

Night and day on me she cries; O that I were where

He - len lies On fair Kirk - con - nell lea!

Curst be the heart that thought the thought,
And curst the hand that fired
the shot,
When in my arms burd Helen dropt,
And died to succour me!
O think na but my heart was sair
When my Love dropt down and spak nae mair!
I laid her down wi' meikle care
On fair Kirconnell lea.
As I went down the water-side,
None but my foe to be my guide,
None but my foe to be my guide,
On fair Kirconnell lea;
I lighted down my sword to draw,
I hacked him in pieces sma',
I hacked him in pieces sma',
For her sake that died for me.

O Helen fair, beyond compare!
I'll make a garland of thy hair
Shall bind my heart for evermair
Until the day I die.

O that I were where Helen lies!
Night and day on me she cries;
Out of my bed she bids me rise,
Says, 'Haste and come to me!'

O Helen fair! O Helen chaste!
If I were with thee, I were blest,
Where thou lies low and takes thy rest
On fair Kirconnell lea.

I wish my grave were growing green,
A winding-sheet drawn ower
my een,
And I in Helen's arms lying,
On fair Kirconnell lea.

But when the mither came to know it,
She said, "Ye disobedient son,
I've gi'en ye schulin, and gi'en ye learnin,
And would ye to your ruin run?"

He's gane to find his luvae sae dear,
And said, "Luvae, luvae, it winna do,
Because that mither's sae unwillin,
That ever I sud marry you."

The bonny creature, wi' sweet behaviour,
While tears cam trinkling to the grund,
Said, "Bairns must obey their parents,
Because they are by Scripture bound.

"There's nae coach, luvae, on the shore, luvae,

O this is no &c.

She's bonie, blooming, straight, and tall,
 And lang has had my heart in thrall;
 And aye it charms my very saul,
 The kind love that's in her ee.

O this is no &c.

A thief sae pawkie is my Jean,
 To steel a blink, by a' unseen;
 But gleg as light are lovers' een,
 When kind love is in her ee.

O this is no &c.

It may escape the courtly sparks,
 It may escape the learned clerks;
 But weel the watching lover marks
 The kind love that's in her ee.

AWA, WHIGS, AWA!

Vivace

A - wa, whigs, a - wa! A - wa, whigs, a - wa!
 Ye'er but a pack o' traitor loons, Ye'll

THE BIRKS OF ABERFELDY

Allegro

Bon - ie las - sie, will ye go, Will ye go, will ye go, Bon - ie las - sie, will ye go To the Birks of A - ber - fel - dy? Now sim - mer blinks on flow - 'ry braes, And o'er the crys - tal streamlet plays, Come let us spend the light - some days In the Birks of A - ber - fel - dy.

Bonie lassie, will ye go,
Will ye go, will ye go,
Bonie lassie, will ye go
To the Birks of Aberfeldy?

While o'er their heads the hazels hing,
The little birdies blythely sing,
Or lightly flit on wanton wing
 In the Birks of Aberfeldy.

Bonie lassie, will ye go,
Will ye go, will ye go,
Bonie lassie will ye go
 To the Birks of Aberfeldy?
The braes ascend like lofty wa's,
The foaming stream deep roaring fa's,
O'er-hung wi' fragrant spreading shaws,
 The Birks of Aberfeldy.

Bonie lassie, will ye go,
Will ye go, will ye go,
Bonie lassie, will ye go
 To the Birks of Aberfeldy?
The hoary cliffs are crown'd wi' flowers,
White o'er the linns the burnie pours,
And rising, weets wi' misty showers
 The Birks of Aberfeldy.

Bonie lassie, will ye go,
Will ye go, will ye go,
Bonie lassie, will ye go
 To the Birks of Aberfeldy?
Let Fortune's gifts at random flee,
They ne'er shall draw a wish frae me,
Supremely blest wi' love and thee,
 In the Birks of Aberfeldy.

AULD ROBIN GRAY

Andante

When the sheep are in the fauld, and the kye at hame, And a' the weary warld to rest are gane, The waes of my heart fa' in showers frae my e'e, When my gudeman lies sound by me.

Young Jamie lo'ed me weel, and socht me for his bride,
 But, saving a crown, he had naething else beside ;
 To make that crown a pound, my Jamie gaed to sea,
 And the crown and the pound were baith for me.

He had nae been awa a week but only twa,
 When my mother she fell sick, and the cow was stown awa ;
 My father brak his arm, and young Jamie at the sea,
 And auld Robin Gray came a-courtin' me.

My father cou'd na work, and my mother cou'd na spin,
 I toil'd day and night, but their bread I cou'd na win,
 Auld Rob maintain'd them baith, and wi' tears in his ee,
 Said, Jenny, for their sakes, O marry me !

My heart it said Na ; for I look'd for Jamie back :
 But the wind it blew high, and the ship it was a wrack :
 The ship it was a wreck, —why did na Jamie dee,
 Or why do I live to say, Wae's me ?

My father argu'd sair; my mother did na speak,
But she look'd in my face till my heart was like to break,
Sae I gae him my hand, though my heart was i' the sea;
And auld Robin Gray was gudeman to me.

I had na been a wife a week but only four,
When sitting sae mournfully at the door,
I saw my Jamie's wraith, for I cou'd na think it he,
Till he said, I'm come hame, for to marry thee.

O sair did we greet, and muckle did we say,
We took but ae kiss, and we tore ourselves away.
I wish that I were dead, but I'm no like to die;
And why do I live to say, Wae's me?

I gang like a ghaist, and I care na to spin,
I dare na think on Jamie, for that would be a sin;
But I'll e'en do my best a gude wife to be,
For auld Robin Gray is kind unto me.

THERE'S NONE TO SOOTHE

Adagio

There's none to soothe my soul to rest, There's none my load of grief to share, Or wake to joy this lone-ly heart, Or light the gloom of dark des-pair.

The voice of joy no more can cheer,
The look of love no more can warm,
Since mute for aye's that voice so dear,
And clos'd that eye alone could charm.

A HIGHLAND LAD MY LOVE WAS BORN

Con spirito

A High - land lad my Love was born, The low - land laws he held in scorn, But he still was faith - ful to his clan, My hey! my braw John High - land - man, Sing ho! my braw John High - land - man, There's not a lad in all the land, Was match for my John High - land - man.

Repeat in Chorus.

With his philabeg and his tartan plaid,
And good claymore down by his side,
The ladies' hearts he did trepan,
My gallant braw John Highlandman.
Sing hey, &c.

We've ranged a' from Tweed to Spey,
And liv'd like lords and ladies gay ;
For a lawland face he feared none,
My gallant braw John Highlandman.
Sing hey, &c.

They banish'd him beyond the sea,
But ere the bud was on the tree,
Adown my cheeks the pearls ran,
Embracing my John Highlandman.
Sing hey, &c.

But O, they catch'd him at the last,
And bound him in a dungeon fast ;
My curse upon them every one,
They've hang'd my braw John Highlandman.
Sing hey, &c.

And now a widow I must mourn
Departed joys that ne'er return ;
No comfort but a hearty can,
When I think on John Highlandman.
Sing hey, &c.

There, while the myrtle's withering boughs
Their lifeless leaves around us shed,
We'll brim the bowl to broken vows,
To friends long lost, the changed, the dead!
Or, as some blighted laurel waves
Its branches o'er the dreary spot,
We'll drink to those neglected graves
Where Valour sleeps, unnamed, forgot.

DEAR HARP OF MY COUNTRY

Andantino

Dear Harp of my Country! in darkness I found thee, The cold chain of si-lence had hung o'er thee long; When proud-ly, my own Is-land Harp! I un-bound thee, And gave all thy chords to light, free-dom, and song! The warm lay of love and the light tone of glad-ness Have wa-ken'd thy fond-est, thy live - li - est thrill; But so oft hast thou e-cho'd the deep sigh of sad-ness, That e'en in thy mirth it will steal from thee still.

Dear Harp of my Country! farewell to thy numbers,
 This sweet wreath of song is the last we shall twine;
 Go,—sleep, with the sunshine of Fame on thy slumbers,
 Till touch'd by some hand less unworthy than mine.
 If the pulse of the patriot, soldier, or lover,
 Have throbb'd at our lay, 'tis thy glory alone;
 I was but as the wind, passing heedlessly over,
 And all the wild sweetness I waked was thy own!

FLY NOT YET

Vivace

Fly not yet, 'tis just the hour When pleasure, like the midnight flow'r, That scorns the eye of vul-gar light, Begins to bloom for sons of night And maids who love the moon. 'Twas but to bless these hours of shade That beau-ty and the moon were made; 'Tis then their soft attractions glow-ing Set the tides and gob-lets flow-ing.
 Oh! stay,— Oh! stay,— Joy so sel-dom weaves a chain Like this to-night, that, oh! 'tis pain To break its links so soon.

Fly not yet; the fount that play'd,
 In times of old, through Ammon's shade,
 Though icy cold by day it ran,
 Yet still, like souls of mirth, began

To burn when night was near;
 And thus should woman's heart and looks
 At noon be cold as winter brooks,
 Nor kindle till the night returning,
 Brings the genial hour for burning.

Oh! stay,—Oh! stay,—
 When did morning ever break,
 And find such beaming eyes awake
 As those that sparkle here!

A bed of fresh ivy to rest thee I'll bring,
 The blackbirds and thrushes around us shall sing;

 How soothing the cares of affection and love.

LOVE'S YOUNG DREAM

Andantino

O the days are gone when beauty bright My heart's chain wove; When my dream of life from morn till night Was love, still love! New hope may bloom, And days may come, Of mild - er, calm - er beam, But there's no - thing half so no-thing half so sweet in life As love's young dream.

O that fairy form is ne'er forgot
 Which first love traced;
 Still it ling'ring haunts the greenest spot
 On mem'ry's waste!
 'Twas odour fled
 As soon as shed;
 'Twas morning's winged dream!
 'Twas a light that ne'er can shine again
 On life's dull stream!
 O 'twas light that ne'er can shine again
 On life's dull stream!

“Lady! dost thou not fear to stray,
So lone and lovely, thro’ this bleak way?
Are Erin’s sons so good or so cold
As not to be tempted by woman or gold?”

“Sir Knight! I feel not the least alarm;
No son of Erin will offer me harm;
For, tho’ they love woman and golden store,
Sir Knight, they love honour and virtue more!

On she went, and her maiden smile
In safety lighted her round the green isle;
And blest for ever was she who relied Upon Erin’s honour and Erin’s pride!

Bright flowers shall spring wherever we rove,
 A voice divine shall talk in each stream,
 The stars shall look like worlds of love,
 And this earth be all one beautiful dream,
 In our eyes, if thou wilt be mine, Love!

And thoughts, whose source is hidden and high,
 Like streams that flow from heavenward hills,
 Shall keep our hearts, like meads that lie
 To be bathed by those eternal rills,
 Ever green, if thou wilt be mine, Love!

All this and more the Spirit of Love

 They were all that to life had entwined him,—
 Nor soon shall the tears of his country be dried,

I flew to her chamber—'twas lonely
As if the loved tenant lay dead—
Ah! would it were death, and death only!
But no—the young false one had fled.
And there hung the lute, that could soften
My very worst pains into bliss,
While the hand that had waked it so often,
Now throbbed to my proud rival's kiss.

There was a time, falsest of women!
When Breffni's good sword would have sought
That man, through a million of foemen,
Who dared but to doubt thee in thought!
While now—oh! degenerate daughter
Of Erin, how fall'n is thy fame!
And, through ages of bondage and slaughter,
Thy country shall bleed for thy shame.

Already the curse is upon her,
And strangers her valleys profane!
They come to divide—to dishonour—
And tyrants they long will remain!
But onward! the green banners rearing,
Go, flesh every brand to the hilt;
On one side is Virtue and Erin,
On theirs is the Saxon and Guilt!

The third line starts with a quarter note D3, a quarter note C3, a quarter note B2, a quarter note A2, a quarter note G2, a quarter note F2, a quarter note E2, and a quarter note D2. The fourth line begins with a quarter note C2, a quarter note B1, a quarter note A1, a quarter note G1, a quarter note F1, a quarter note E1, a quarter note D1, and a quarter note C1. The fifth line starts with a quarter note B1, a quarter note A1, a quarter note G1, a quarter note F1, a quarter note E1, a quarter note D1, a quarter note C1, and a quarter note B1. The sixth line begins with a quarter note A1, a quarter note G1, a quarter note F1, a quarter note E1, a quarter note D1, a quarter note C1, a quarter note B1, and a quarter note A1. There are three triplet markings above the notes in the second, fourth, and sixth lines.

Where Boyne's silver tide sweetly murmuring flows,
 The rich yellow harvest luxuriantly grows;
 But never again shall the stranger repair
 The fruits it shall yield in thy mansion to share.

The tones of the harp in that mansion have ceas'd,
 No more it resounds with the mirth of the feast;
 But each gentle bosom for thee breathes a sigh,

Then it was from a Turkish palace
 Came an eastern lady bright,
 She, in spite of tyrants jealous,
 Saw and loved an English knight.

“Tell me, captive, why in anguish
Foes have dragg’d thee here to dwell,
Where poor Christians as they languish,
Hear no sound of Sabbath bell?”

“’Twas on Transylvania’s Bannat,
When the crescent shone afar,
Like a pale disastrous planet,
O’er the purple tide of war;
In that day of desolation,
Lady, I was captive made,
Bleeding for my Christian nation,
By the walls of high Belgrade.”

“Captive, should the brightest jewel
From my turban set thee free?”

“Lady! no; the gift were cruel,
Ransom’d yet, if reft of thee.
Say, fair Princess, would it grieve thee
Christian climes should we behold?”

“Nay, bold knight, I would not leave thee,
Were thy ransom paid in gold.”

Now in heaven’s blue expansion
Rose the midnight star to view,
When to leave her father’s mansion,
Thrice she wept, and bade adieu—
“Fly we then while none discover.”
Tyrant barques, in vain ye ride!
Soon at Rhodes the British lover
Clasps his blooming eastern bride.

The musical score is written on a single treble clef staff with a key signature of one flat (B-flat) and a 6/8 time signature. The tempo is marked 'Lento'. The melody consists of six lines of music, each with lyrics underneath. The notes are primarily quarter and eighth notes, with some rests. The piece ends with a double bar line.

Sail on, sail on, thou fear - less bark, Where -

A CHIEFTAIN TO THE HIGHLANDS BOUND

Allegretto

A chief-tain, to the high-lands bound, Cries
 "Boat-man, do not tar-ry! And I'll give thee a sil-ver pound To row us o'er the fer-ry." "Now who be ye would cross Lochgyle, This dark and stormy wa-ter?" "O I'm the Chief of Ul-wa's Isle, And this Lord Ul-lin's daugh-ter."

"And fast before her father's men
 Three days we've fled together,
 For should he find us in the glen,
 My blood would stain the heather;
 His horsemen hard behind us ride—
 Should they our steps discover,
 Then who will cheer my bonny bride,
 When they have slain her lover?"

Out spoke the hardy Highland wight;
 "I'll go, my chief, I'm ready,
 It is not for your silver bright,
 But for your winsome lady:—

And, by my word ! the bonny bird
In danger shall not tarry ;
So, though the waves are raging white,
I'll row you o'er the ferry."

By this the storm grew loud apace,
The water-wraith was shrieking ;
And in the scowl of Heav'n, each face
Grew dark as they were speaking :
But still as louder blew the wind,
And as the night grew drearer,
Adown the glen rode armed men,
Their trampling sounded nearer.

"Oh haste thee, haste !" the lady cries
"Though tempests round us gather
I'll meet the raging of the skies,
But not an angry father !"
The boat has left a stormy land,
A stormy sea before her,—
When, O ! too strong for human hand,
The tempest gathered o'er her.

And still they row'd amidst the roar
Of waters fast prevailing ;
Lord Ullin reach'd that fatal shore,—
His wrath was chang'd to wailing.
For, sore dismay'd, through storm and shade,
His child he did discover :—
One lovely hand she stretch'd for aid,
And one was round her lover.

"Come back ! come back !" he cried in grief,
"Across this raging water ;
And I'll forgive your highland chief,
My daughter !—O my daughter !"
'Twas vain : the loud waves lash'd the shore,
Return or aid preventing ;
The waters wild went o'er his child,
And he was left lamenting.

Contempt for the minion, who calls you disloyal!

Tho' fierce to the foe, to your friends you are true;

And the tribute most high to a head that is royal,

Is love from the heart that loves liberty too.

While cowards, who blight

Your fame, your right,

Would shrink from the blaze of the battle array;

The standard of green

In front would be seen,—

O my life on your faith! were you summon'd this minute,

You'd cast every bitter remembrance away,

And show what the arm of old Erin has in it,

When roused by the foe on her Prince's day!

He loves the green isle, and his love is recorded

In hearts that have suffer'd too much to forget;

And hope shall be crown'd, and attachment rewarded,

And Erin's gay jubilee shine out yet!

The gem may be broke

By many a stroke,

But nothing can cloud its native ray;

Each fragment will cast

A light to the last.

And thus, Erin, my country! tho' broken thou art,

There's a lustre within thee, that ne'er will decay;

A spirit, that beams thro' each suffering part,

And now smiles at their pain, on the Prince's day.

MY SORROW, DEEP SORROW

Andante

My sorrow, deep sorrow, in - cessant returning; Time still as it flies adds in - crease to my mourn - ing: When I think of Mac - gre - gor, true heir of Glen - ly - on, Where still to sad fan - cy his ban - ners seem fly - ing.

Of Macgregor na Ruara, whose pipes far resounding,
 With their bold martial strain set each bosom a bounding,
 My sorrow, deep sorrow, incessant returning,
 Time still as it flies adds increase to my mourning.

The badge of Strathspey from yon pine by the fountain,
 Distinguish'd the hero when climbing the mountain,
 The plumes of the eagle gave wings to his arrow,
 And destruction fled wide from the bow bent so narrow;
 His darts, so well polish'd and bright, were a treasure
 That the son of a king might have boasted with pleasure.
 When the brave son of Murdock so gracefully held them,
 Well pois'd and sure aim'd, never weapon excell'd them.

Now, dead to the honour and pride I inherit,
Not the blow of a vassal could rouse my sad spirit!
Tho' insult or injury now should oppress me,
My protector is gone, and nought else can distress me.
Deaf to my loud sorrow, and blind to my weeping,
My aid, my support, in yon chapel lies sleeping;
In that cold narrow bed he shall slumber for ever,
Yet nought from my fancy his image can sever.

He that shar'd the kind breast which my infancy nourish'd,
Now, hid in the earth, leaves no trace where he flourish'd.
No obsequies fitting his pale corse adorning,
No funeral honours to soothe our long mourning,
No virgins high-born, with their tears to bedew thee,
To deck out thy grave, or with flow'rets to strew thee.
My sorrow, deep sorrow, incessant returning,
Time still as it flies adds increase to my mourning.

THE MINSTREL BOY

Con anima

The Min-strel Boy to the war is gone, In the ranks of death you'll find him; His father's sword he has gird-ed on, And his wild harp slung be - hind him.
"Land of Song!" said the warrior bard, "Tho' all the world be trays thee, One sword, at least, thy rights shall guard, One faith-ful harp shall praise thee.

The minstrel fell! but the foeman's chain
Could not bring that proud soul under;
The harp he lov'd ne'er spoke again,
For he tore its chords asunder;
And said, "No chain shall sully thee,
Thou soul of love and bravery!
Thy songs were made for the pure and free,
They shall never sound in slavery."

AVENGING AND BRIGHT

Animato

The musical score is written on a single treble clef staff in 3/4 time. It consists of five lines of music. The first line begins with a treble clef and a 3/4 time signature. The melody is composed of eighth and quarter notes, with some rests. The lyrics are placed below the notes, with hyphens indicating syllables that span across two notes. The piece concludes with a double bar line.

A, - veng-ing and bright fall the swift sword of E - rin On him who the brave sons of Us - na betray'd! For ev' - ry fond eye which he wa-ken'd a tear in, A drop from his heart-wounds shall weep o'er her blade.

By the red cloud which hung over Conner's dark dwelling,

When Ulad's three champions lay sleeping in gore—

By the billows of war which so often high swelling,

Have wafted these heroes to victory's shore!—

We swear to avenge them!—no joy shall be tasted,

The harp shall be silent, the maiden unwed,

Our halls shall be mute, and our fields shall lie wasted,

Till vengeance be wreaked on the murderer's head!

Yes, monarch! though sweet are our home recollections,

Though sweet are the tears that from tenderness fall;

Though sweet are our friendships, our hopes and affections,

Revenge on a tyrant is sweetest of all.

I'VE A SECRET TO TELL THEE

Allegretto

I've a se - cret to tell thee, but hush! not here, O not where the world its vi - gil keeps; I'll seek, to whisper it in thine ear, Someshore where the spi - rit of si - lence sleeps; Where sum - mer's wave un - mur - m'ring dies, Nor night-bird sighs, The Rose saith, chiding him, "Hush, sweet, hush!"

There, 'mid the deep silence of that hour,

When stars can be heard in ocean dip,

Thyself shall, under some rosy bower,

Sit mute, with thy finger on thy lip:

Like him, the boy, who born among

The flowers that on the Nile-stream blush,

Sits ever thus; his only song

To earth and heaven still "Hush, sweet, hush!"

WEEP ON, WEEP ON

Andantino

The musical score is written on a single treble clef staff in a key signature of one flat (B-flat) and a common time signature (C). The tempo is marked 'Andantino'. The melody consists of eighth and sixteenth notes, with some rests. The lyrics are printed below the staff, aligned with the notes. The score ends with a double bar line.

Weep on, weep on, your hour is past; Your dreams of pride are o'er; The fa - tal chain is round you cast, And you are men no more! In vain the he-ro's heart hath bled; The sa - ge's tongue hath “’Twas fate,” they’ll say, “a wayward fate,

 Your web of discord wove;
 And while your tyrants joined in hate,
 You never joined in love!
 But hearts fell off, that ought to twine,
 And man profaned what God had given,
 Till some were heard to curse the shrine
 Where others knelt to Heaven!”

THE BLUSH OF MORN

Andante

The blush of morn at length appears, The haw - thorn weeps in dew - y tears; E - merg - ing from the shades of night, The dis - tant hills are tipp'd with light; The swell - ing breeze, with balm - y breath, Wafts fra-grance from the pur-ple heath; And war - bling wood - larks seem to say,
 Sweet An - na! 'tis the dawn of day!

Ah! didst thou love's soft anguish feel,
No sleep thy weary eye would seal!
But to the bank thou wouldst repair,
Secure to meet thy true love there.
In pity to my pangs awake!
Unwilling I thy slumbers break;
But longer absence would betray
I met thee at the dawn of day.

Yet though our parents now may frown,
Some pitying power our vows shall crown;
Be constancy and truth but thine,
While youth, and health, and love are mine:
Then shall our hearts united glow
With all that fondness can bestow;
And love extend his gentle sway,
O'er close of eve and dawn of day.

THROUGH GRIEF AND THROUGH DANGER

Andantino

Through grief and through dan - ger thy smile hath cheer'd my way, Till hope seem'd to bud from each thorn that round me lay; The dark-er our fortune, the bright-er our pure love burn'd, Till shame in - to glo - ry, till fear in-to zeal was turn'd Oh! slave as I was, in thy arms my spi - rit felt free, And bless'd e'en the sorrows that made me more

dear to thee.

The rival was honour'd, while thou wert wrong'd and scorn'd ;
 Thy crown was of briers, while gold her brows adorn'd ;
 She woo'd me to temples, while thou lay'st hid in caves ;
 Her friends were all masters, while thine, alas ! were slaves ;
 Yet cold in the earth at thy feet I would rather be,
 Than wed what I lov'd not, or turn one thought from thee.

They slander thee sorely, who say thy vows are frail—
 Hadst thou been a false one, thy cheek had look'd less pale !
 They say, too, so long thou hast worn thy lingering chains,
 That deep in thy heart they have printed their servile stains :
 Oh ! do not believe them—no chain could that soul subdue ;
 Where shineth thy spirit, there liberty shineth too.

Allegretto

There came to the beach a poor ex - ile of E - rin, The dew on his thin robe was hea - vy and chill; For his coun - try he sigh'd, when at twi - light re - pair - ing To wan - der a - lone by the wind beat - en hill. But the day - star at - tract - ed his eye's sad de - vo - tion, For it rose o'er his own na - tive isle of the o - cean, Where once in the fire of his youth - ful e - mo - tion He sang the bold an - them of E - rin go bragh!

“Sad is my fate,” said the heart-broken stranger,

“The wild deer and wolf to a covert can flee;
But I have no refuge from famine and danger,

A home and a country remain not to me:

Never again in the green sunny bowers,
Where my forefathers liv’d, shall I spend the sweet hours,
Or cover my harp with the wild woven flowers,
And strike to the numbers of Erin go bragh!”

“Erin, my country! though sad and forsaken,

In dreams I revisit thy sea-beaten shore;

But, alas! in a far foreign land I awaken,

And sigh for the friends who can meet me no more.

Oh, cruel fate! wilt thou never replace me

In a mansion of peace where no perils can chase me?

Never again shall my brothers embrace me?

They died to defend me, or live to deplore!”

“Where is my cabin door fast by the wild wood?

Sisters and sire did ye weep for its fall?

Where is the mother that look’d on my childhood?

And where is the bosom friend dearer than all?

Oh, my sad heart! long abandon’d by pleasure,

Why did it dote on a fast fading treasure?

Tears like the rain-drop may fall without measure,

But rapture and beauty they cannot recall.”

“Yet, all its sad recollection suppressing,

One dying wish my lone bosom can draw;

Erin! an exile bequeaths thee his blessing!

Land of my forefathers, Erin go bragh!

Buried and cold, when my heart stills her motion,

Green be thy fields, sweetest isle of the ocean!

And thy harp-striking bards sing aloud with devotion,

Erin mavourneen, Erin go bragh!”

AND DOTH NOT A MEETING LIKE THIS

Con moto

And doth not a meeting like this make amends For all the long years I've been wand - 'ring a - way, To see thus a-round me my youth's ear - ly friends As smil - ing and kind as in that hap - py day! Though hap - ly o'er some of your brows, as o'er mine, The snow - fall of Time may be steal - ing—what then? Like Alps in the sun - set, thus light - ed by wine, We'll wear the gay tinge of Youth's ros - es a - gain.

What soften'd remembrances come o'er the heart,
In gazing on those we've been lost to so long!
The sorrows, the joys, of which once they were part,
Still round them, like visions of yesterday, throng.
As letters some hand hath invisibly traced,
When held to the flame will steal out on the sight;
So, many a feeling that long seem'd effaced,
The warmth of a meeting like this brings to light.

And thus, as in memory's bark, we shall glide,
To visit the scenes of our boyhood anew,
Though oft we may see, looking down on the tide,
The wreck of full many a hope shining through—
Yet still, as in fancy we point to the flowers,
That once made a garden of all the gay shore,
Deceiv'd for a moment, we'll think them still ours,
And breathe the fresh air of Life's morning once more.

So brief our existence, a glimpse, at the most,
Is all we can have of the few we hold dear;
And oft even joy is unheeded and lost,
For want of some heart, that could echo it, near.
Ah, well may we hope, when this short life is gone,
To meet in some world of more permanent bliss,
For a smile or a grasp of the hand, hast'ning on,
Is all we enjoy of each other in this.

But, come—the more rare such delights to the heart,
The more we should welcome, and bless them the more—
They're ours, when we meet—they are lost, when we part,
Like birds that bring summer, and fly when 'tis o'er.
Thus circling the cup, hand in hand, ere we drink,
Let Sympathy pledge us, through pleasure, through pain,
That fast as a feeling but touches one link,
Her magic shall send it direct through the chain.

WHILE GAZING ON THE MOON'S LIGHT

Lento non troppo

While gaz - ing on the moon's light, A bright-er eyes un - heed-ed play, I'll love these moonlight looks a - lone Which bless my home, and guide my way.

The day had sunk in dim showers,
But midnight now, with lustre meek,
Illumined all the pale flowers,
Like hope, that lights a mourner's cheek.
I said (while
The moon's smile
Play'd o'er a stream, in dimpling bliss),
"The moon looks
On many brooks,
The brook can see no moon but this."
And thus, I thought, our fortunes run,
For many a lover looks to thee;
While, oh! I feel there is but one,
One Mary in the world for me!

Bring straw for our bed, shake it down to the feet,
Then over us spread the winnowing sheet;

Then give us a pinch of your sneeshin a yeon.
Good Lord, what a sight! after all their good cheer,
For people to fight in the midst of their beer!

Your warmest smile for the child of song.

Keep this cup, which now is o'erflowing,
To grace your revel when I'm at rest;
Never, oh, never its balm bestowing

Yet it was not that Nature had shed o'er the scene
Her purest of crystal and brightest of green;
'Twas not the soft magic of streamlet or hill;
O no—it was something more exquisite still:—

'Twas that friends, the belov'd of my bosom, were near,
Who made ev'ry dear scene of enchantment more dear;
And who felt how the best charms of Nature improve
When we see them reflected in looks that we love.

Sweet vale of Avoca! how calm could I rest

WHEN COLD IN THE EARTH

 far From the pathways of light he was tempted to roam, Be it bliss to re - mem - ber that thou wert the star Which a - rose on his dark-ness, and guided him home.

From thee and thy innocent beauty first came

The revealings that taught him true love to adore,
To feel the bright presence, and turn him with shame

From the idols he darkly had knelt to before.

O'er the waves of a life, long benighted and wild,

Thou cam'st, like a soft golden calm o'er the sea;
And if happiness purely and glowingly smiled

On his evening horizon, the light was from thee.

And tho' sometimes the shade of past folly would rise,

And tho' falsehood again would allure him to stray,
He has turn'd to the glory that dwelt in those eyes,

And the folly, the falsehood, soon vanished away.

As the priests of the Sun, when their altar grew dim,

At the day-beam alone could its lustre repair,

So, if virtue a moment grew languid to him,

He but flew to that smile, and rekindled it there!

HAS SORROW THY YOUNG DAYS SHADED

Grazioso

Has sor - row thy young days shaded, As

 Time, with his cold wing, wither Each feeling that once was dear? Come, child of mis - for - tune! hither, I'll

Has Love to that soul so tender,
 Been like our Lagenian mine,
 Where sparkles of golden splendour
 All over the surface shine.
 But if in pursuit you go deeper,
 Allured by the gleam that shone,
 Ah! false as the dream of the sleeper,
 Like Love the bright vision is gone.

Has Hope, like the bird in the story,
That flitted from tree to tree
With the talisman's glitt'ring glory—
Has Hope been that bird to thee?
On branch after branch alighting,
The gem did she still display,
And, when nearest and most inviting,
Then waft the fair gem away?

If thus the sweet hours have fled,
When Sorrow herself look'd bright;
If thus the fond hope has cheated,
That led thee along so light;
If thus the unkind world wither
Each feeling that once was dear;—
Come, child of misfortune! come hither,
I'll weep with thee tear for tear.

OH! WELL DO I REMEMBER

Larghetto

Oh! well do I re - mem - ber, 't was in the month of May, When oft my foot - steps used to rove, at ear - ly dawn of day; They roved to - wards a cot - tage where dwelt a mai - den fair, Her eyes were like the stars a - bove, and au - burn was her hair. She oft would come to

But now the dawn is cloudy, and chill the morning dew,
 And May no longer seems to wear her robe of verdant hue ;
 No more my footsteps wander towards that cottage door ;
 Along the path, her swain to meet, the maiden trips no more.
 The cottage still remaineth, but no bright embers glow,
 No wreathed smoke amid the trees comes curling from below ;
 The maiden hath departed, and I am left to mourn
 With heavy heart, o'er fleeting joys that never can return.

In Summer, in Winter, in rain or in snow ;
In joy or in sorrow, in weal or in woe,
Dear Cambria, to thee shall the mead-cup o'erflow.

Amid the dear scenes of our childhood and youth,

The musical score is written on a single treble clef staff in G major (one sharp) and common time (C). It begins with a tempo marking of 'Vivace'. The melody consists of several lines of music, each corresponding to a line of lyrics. The final line of music ends with a double bar line. The lyrics are: 'Joy up - on thy bright cheek dan - ces, Hob a der-ry dan - no, Jane, sweet Jane! From thine eye Love's arrow glances, Hob a derry danno, Jane, sweet Jane! In the green wood I am waiting, All a - lone, sweet Jane; To the tune-ful birds re - lat-ing How I love thee, Jane. Come un-to the trys - ting tree, Jane, sweet Jane!'. WAIT FOR THE WAGGON

Allegretto

Will you come with me, my Phil - lis dear, To yon blue moun - tain free, Where the blossoms smell the sweetest, come rove a-long with me, It's ev - 'ry Sun-day morning when I am by your side, We'll jump in-to the wag-gon, wait for the wag-gon, wait for the wag-gon and we'll all take a ride.

Repeat in Chorus.

Where the river runs like silver, and the birds sing so sweet,
I have a cabin, Phillis, and something good to eat.
Come listen to my story, it will relieve my heart,
So jump into the waggon, and off we will start.
 Wait for the waggon, &c.

Do you believe, my Phillis dear, old Mike with all his wealth,
Can make you half so happy, as I, with youth and health ?
We'll have a little farm—a horse, a pig, a cow,
And you shall mind the dairy while I do guide the plough.
 Wait for the waggon, &c.

Your lips are red as poppies, your hair so smooth and neat,
All braided up with dahlias and hollyhocks so sweet ;
It's every Sunday morning when I am by your side,
We'll jump into the waggon, and all take a ride.
 Wait for the waggon, &c.

Together on life's journey we'll travel till we stop,
And if we have no trouble we'll reach the happy top.
Then come with me, sweet Phillis, my dear, my lovely bride,
We'll jump into the waggon and all take a ride.
 Wait for the waggon, &c.

But wealth and fortune don't belong
To one that's born a slave.
A white man came with dollars,
She fled with him to dwell,
And broke the vows she made to me,
Oh ! perjur'd Sarah Bell.
Cheer up, Sam, &c.

Now all day while I'm working,
And hoeing up the corn,
I sigh, and wish within myself
I never had been born.
Perhaps she's gay and happy,
Wherever she may dwell,
While my poor heart is breaking
For deceitful Sarah Bell.
Cheer up Sam, &c.

OLD DOG TRAY

Andantino

The morn of life is past, And ev - 'ning comes at last; It brings me a dream of a

Have vanish'd one by one,
The lov'd ones, the dear ones have all pass'd away ;
Their happy smiles have flown,
Their gentle voices gone,
I've nothing left but old dog Tray.
Old dog Tray, &c.

When thoughts recal the past,
His eyes are on me cast,
I know he feels what my breaking heart would say ;
Although he cannot speak,
I'll vainly, vainly seek
A better friend than old dog Tray.
Old dog Tray, &c.

NOTES

- NO.
- I. II. III. These three songs are from MSS. in the British Museum, of the early part of the sixteenth century. The tonality of No. III. is, to the modern ear, somewhat vague; but II. has little, and I. nothing, to mark its antiquity. The modulation into the dominant, at the beginning of bar 8, of the last, is thoroughly modern.
- IV. Mr. Chappell has called attention to the fact that this, like many other undoubtedly English tunes, has found its way into more than one collection of Welsh airs.
- V. "Any song intended to arouse in the morning—even a love-song—was formerly called a hunt's-up." So, in French, we have Aubade (music to be performed à l'aube du jour), and in German, Morgenmusik.
- VI. VII. From Deuteromelia and Melismata, the 2nd and 3rd
- VIII. IX. Collections, Pammelia being the 1st, of "Pleasant Roundelays, Delightful Catches, Freemen's Songs," &c. published in the beginning of the seventeenth century, by Thomas Ravenscroft. Many of these were, even then, ancient. No. IX. is, without doubt, the precursor of the well-known "A frog he would a wooing go."
- X. XV. XVII. The traditions of the stage have preserved these
- XX. XXII. tunes to Shakespear's Songs. The majority were, in all likelihood, ancient even in the poet's time.
- XXIV. Episodes of the well-known Beggar's Daughter of Bethnal Green, in Percy's Reliques.
- XI. XIII.
- XII. The vocal compositions of John Dowland, "the friend of Shakespear," often incorrectly called Madrigals, are, for the most part, Songs, with an accompaniment for the lute (on which Dowland was a skilful performer), or for three other voices. Though a contemporary of the great English madrigal writers, Dowland was not one of them. His compositions, like those of his contemporary Ford, belong rather to the school of which, in England, Henry Lawes (Milton's friend and fellow-labourer) was the most distinguished master.
- XVII. One of the tunes to which Chevy Chase and The Children in the Wood were sung; also a song in The Beggar's Opera.
- XVIII. I have omitted a few verses from this ballad to bring it within practicable length.
- XIX. A good example of a plagal melody, i.e. a melody included between the 5th above and the 4th below the tonic, and often ending, like this, on one of the former notes.

- NO. Like No. XII. this is a Song, with an accompaniment for the lute, or three other voices. The parts for Alto, Tenor, and Bass usually published differ materially from those of Ford, whose harmony, it must be admitted, is very inferior to his melody.
- XXXIII. Perhaps the most popular English ballad of its class. Goldsmith has honoured it with more than one allusion.
- XXXIV. Mr. Chappell gives a very different version of this tune. The above is from a song-book of the end of the seventeenth century, The Merry Musician, in which the tune is so absurdly barred that it is difficult to understand its rhythm.
- XXXV. The two parts, by the addition of which this elegant Song's turned into a Trio, in so many collections, are modern.
- XXXVIII. John Reading was organist of Winchester College, from 1681 to 1689. All attempts at discovering the author of Dulce Domum have been hitherto unsuccessful.
- XXXIX. There is a song by Henry Fielding, of two verses only which do not differ essentially from the first two of this, by Leveridge. "The music of Macbeth, now popularly known as Lock's, is the composition of Richard Leveridge, and was performed for the first time on the 25th January, 1704. Lock's music, composed in the reign of Charles II. is entirely different." (See Dr. Rimbault's edition of North's Memoires of Music, p. 97.)
- XL. This is the only tune I have admitted by a foreign composer,—if Handel, who lived and worked among us for half a century, made himself an Englishman by law, and left his MSS. in our charge, can be regarded as a foreigner. The above was worked into The Beggar's Opera by Pepusch, also a native of Germany, and a "naturalized" Englishman.
- XLIV. The tune here printed is much older and, I cannot but think, much superior to that which Carey himself adapted to his verses.
- XLVII. One of the most pleasing productions of Charles Dibdin (b. 1745, d. 1814), poet, musician, and vocalist. His lyrics alone, which form only a portion of his writings, fill two closely printed volumes (roy. 8vo.) in Davidson's Edition. The Editor, Mr. Hogarth, says well of him, "Dibdin united in his own person the characteristics of the bards of the olden time. He gave to the world, through the medium of his own recitations, his own poetry and his own music. In modern days he is absolutely without a parallel."
- XLVIII. A tune whose nationality is disputed. (Compare IV.) It is invariably assumed that the Welsh melody Llwyn Onn and the above have a common origin. But is the resemblance so close as to preclude the possibility of their derivation from independent sources?

- NO.
- L. The long sequence which forms the second section of this tune is suggestive of a Cambrian origin.
- LXVII. Mr. Chappell has thoroughly disposed of the Irish claim to this melody. "The termination of As slow our Ship, in the "Irish Melodies," is doubtless Moore's own.
- LXIII. Another "Irish Melody," undoubtedly of English origin. The writer of Believe me, if all those endearing young charms may, however, be pardoned his abduction, in consideration of the immortal verse to which he has inarried the music he ran away with.
- LXIV. To be found in most collections of "Scottish Songs,"—probably on account of the single iambic foot with the emphasis on the first syllable,—so characteristic of, though by no means peculiar to, Scottish melody.
- LXVI. "The Blue Bell of Scotland, a favourite ballad, as composed and sung by Mrs. Jordan at the Theatre Royal, Drury Lane," was entered at Stationers' Hall on the 13th of May, 1800. (See Chappell's Pop. Mus. p. 793.)
- LXIX. The British Musical Miscellany was published by Walsh, well-known from his connexion with Handel. Like too many musical works it is without date, which is supplied however in this case by the "song and spinet, and the allusion to From Rosy Bowers, the finest of Purcell's "Mad" Songs. Purcell died in 1695, from which year till 1710, that of Handel's arrival in England, no other musician's works were tolerated here.
- LXXI. Commonly and rightly regarded as one of the most characteristic of English melodies. The disjunct intervals are all drawn from the chords of the tonic dominant and sub-dominant—chiefly from the former two.
- LXXIII. Entitled, in the British Musical Miscellany, "A Yorkshire Song."
- LXXV. Too diffuse, if not too long, for a "national" melody; but the last four bars are exquisite. It is to be regretted that Dibdin's science, of which he had enough to awaken his ambition, fell short of enabling him to develop his ideas in an orderly manner.
- LXXVIII. Introduced, as a Round, by Shield into his opera, Rosina.
- LXXXV. The one song which still keeps its favour of John Percy, a prolific and popular melodist of the last century. The third verse is, I suspect, not by the same hand as the former two.
- LXXXVI. Few melodies of the present century have enjoyed wider popularity than this; nor is it the only one by the same composer which has known the same fate.
- XCII. By a comparison of dates, Mr. Chappell has disposed of the claim of Falconer, the author of The Shipwreck, to this song. The patience of no modern audience, nor indeed the lungs of any contemporary singer, would support them through this lyric, with which Incedon has, in the memory of men living, roused many a crowded house to a very frenzy of excitement.

NO.

- xcvii. At least as old as the beginning of the sixteenth century. Conformably to the rules of old tonality, the B in the middle of the third bar, following so soon on the F at the beginning of it, should be flat. The tune is in the first, or Dorian, mode.
- c. A contribution to Playford's Select Ayres and Dialogues, by a veritable Maestro, who, educated under the rule of the old tonality, has here shown that he understood, and liked, the new.
- ciii. Storace, though of Italian parentage, was born in England.
- civ. The resemblance of the first phrase of this melody to that of The Heavens are Telling has often been remarked. Hook's tune must have been current at the time of Haydn's visit to London in 1791.
- cvi. I have made a slight excision from this pretty and once very popular tune, which those who know the somewhat desultory original will easily excuse.
- cviii. Mr. Alexander Smith has not included these verses in his recent and careful edition of Burns, to whom, in most copies of the song, they are assigned.
- cx. The melody to which Moore has adapted his elegant When through life unblest we rove. There seems no reason to doubt its English origin.
- cx. I took down this melody from the singing of my late friend Mr. Robert Usher, of Newcastle-upon-Tyne, who had been familiar with it from his earliest youth as an old and local tune. There is another and inferior version in Thomson's Scottish Songs (vol. ii. p. 62), entitled My Jo, Janet.
- cxii. Another of the "Irish Melodies," entitled by Moore Basket of Oysters. "It has been a favourite tune," says Mr. Chappell, "from the time of Elizabeth to the present day." There are two versions of it, of which the one printed is the more modern.
- cxiii. I have re-modelled the second, and re-written the third, verses of this cleverly designed song, which, in its original form, could not have been included in this collection. The tune has much character.
- cxiv. More has been written about this song than anybody is likely ever to read. Mr. Chappell has condensed the facts or opinions most worthy of attention in respect to the origin and authorship both of the words and music, into fifteen entertaining pages, royal octavo! at the end of which, with provoking impartiality, he leaves "the verdict as to authorship in the heads of 'his' readers"—an example which the exigencies both of time and space oblige me to follow.

- no
- CXV. "There is a series of old rustic songs," says Mr. Chambers, "commemorating 'a bonnie lass,' also the 'braw, braw lads of Gala Water,' and which were sung to a beautiful simple air of one strain." These have been, for the most part, superseded by Burns' song, written, to the same air, for Thomson's Collection.
- CXVI. Said to be old, on what evidence I know not,—surely not on internal evidence. Burns wrote a narrative ballad to this tune, too long for insertion here.
- CXVII. Mr. Chappell regards this beautiful melody as "a mere modification" of the English tune, I am the Duke of Norfolk, which "has remained in constant and popular use from the early part of the reign of Queen Elizabeth down to the present time." Moore has included it, modified as usual, in his Irish Melodies, under the name Cruiskin Lawn. Whatever be its origin or date, its interest and popularity are due entirely to the words with which it is now universally associated. By right of conquest, at least, it is a Scottish song.
- CXX. Burns has re-cast this song, of which I have printed the original words.
- CXXI. Composed originally, I suspect, in D, and, like many other Scottish melodies, by a violin player. The cadences are very suggestive of open strings.
- CXXII. Curious on account of its uncertain tonality.
- CXXIII. Probably Irish.
- CXXV. I have not succeeded in learning anything about the origin or date of this magnificent melody, the germ of which is undoubtedly old. It is in the 3rd mode, modulating in the second section into the Modo Lascivo of the old masters—our "natural scale." No attempt at harmonization with which I am acquainted shows the slightest recognition of this. Burns has written some plaintive and incongruous words to this tune, which, for individuality—the first quality in a tune—strength, and sweetness, is all but unequalled in its class. I refer those who are curious about Roy's wife, or her husband, to the pages of Mr. Chambers.
- CXXVIII. The first two lines are from an old dialogue between a mother and daughter; the subject being the eligibility of Auld Rob Morris, who has fourscore years as well as fourscore sheep, as a husband. (See Chambers' Songs of Scotland, p. 210.) The topic and the treatment of Burns' song are his own.
- CXXIX. There is a touching "old ballad" in The Scottish Minstrel (vol. iii. p. 58) of the tune of which the above seems to be a more modern adaptation.
- CXXXI. In the 1st tone, transposed to the fourth above.
- CXXXII. Another violin tune, originally in D (See CXXI.). It is certainly modern, and, I think, overrated.
- CXXXIII. In the 8th tone, transposed one degree lower. The - last phrase has evidently been modernized. The words were written in the summer of 1803, "when it was understood that a negotiation for bringing Mr. P(itt) again into office had failed." (See Thomson's Collection, vol. iv. p. 153.)

- CXXXIV. "This song," says Mr. Chambers, "has found a lodgment in the hearts of Scotsmen in all parts of the earth, and must there remain while the words continue to be understood."
- CXXXV. A fine example of a plagal tune, ending not on the final or key note, but on the 4th below it.
- CXXXVI. This melody has been singularly fortunate in having called into existence two songs of entirely opposite character—the one the most defiant, the other the most resigned, in its tone, of their age and country. The tune requires an additional note at the beginning when sung to Lady Nairn's words.
- CXXXIX. There is a Scottish version of this dialogue not differing in any important particular from that in Percy's Reliques, followed above.
- CXL. A spirit-stirring Jacobite song. The second section has much character.
- CXLI. From their place in Thomson's Collection these beautiful verses would seem to have been written to this tune, which is surely unworthy of them.
- CXLIII. There is a song by Burns, Thou hast left me ever, Tam, in Thomson's Collection, to this tune, but Macneil's has a prior, and even a better, claim; and there was not room for both.
- CXLVI. The first section of this melody is somewhat confused, but the second is exquisite.
- CXLVIII. Mr. Chambers' version of this pleasing and popular song differs slightly from the above from Thomson.
- CXLIX. Probably old, certainly beautiful. The sequence in the second section is found in more than one melody—of all nations.
- CL. A tune which owes its individuality to the omission of the 4th of the scale, though the 7th is of frequent occurrence.
- CLIII. No music has ever been more happily married to verse than this. Not to speak of its perpetual motion—hardly giving breathing-time to the singer—the gude wife's dazed condition is admirably expressed by the uncertain tonality of the tune which, beginning in G, leaves off, but cannot be said to end, in D.
- CLV. Another violin tune—the original key D.
- CLVI. The words usually sung to this tune, beginning—"In April when primroses paint the sweet plain," are by Allan Ramsay. I have printed the older and less known song.
- CLX. This beautiful melody—claimed also by the Irish—has inspired both Burns and Moore. The songs,

- NO. From thee, Eliza, and I saw thy form in youthful prime, were both written to Donald. Burns' song will be found further on, adapted to another melody, hardly less beautiful.
- CLXI. In the 8th tone, of which the final is G,—the F being, when used, natural.
- CLXIV. Also in the 8th tone, transposed a degree lower.
- CLXV. The melody all but identical with CLIII.; but the words are too characteristic of Burns, and too important in every way, to be omitted.
- CLXVI. Burns has written a song to this tune, but it has not succeeded in displacing the older one of Allan Ramsay printed above.
- CLXVII. There is a sad story connected with this touching song, for which I must refer the reader to Mr. Chambers' Songs of Scotland.
- CLXIX. First published, possibly written, by Sir Walter Scott. The tune is in what Mr. Engel (See Music of the most Ancient Nations) calls the pentatonic scale—deficient both in the 4th and 7th sounds.
- CLXXVII. No one of the innumerable Jacobite Songs is so well known as this.
- CLXXIX. One of the most popular, and perhaps the best, of the Jacobite tunes. The second section is particularly striking and well-contrived.
- CLXXX. I have included these two songs not so much on account of the tunes—albeit pretty ones—as of the words. The second verse of the former, and the fourth of the latter, are specially worthy, though for different reasons, of note.
- CLXXXIV. A noble tune, thoroughly modern in character and construction.
- CLXXXV. Founded on an old song, "from which nothing is borrowed but the first four lines." (Thomson.)
- CLXXXVI. The tune to which this very celebrated song was originally written. It is in the 3rd tone, wherein there is a semitone between the 1st and 2nd sounds (E and F). The somewhat maudlin and ill constructed tune to which the words are usually sung is the composition of an English amateur.
- CLXXXVIII. Closely resembling a song printed by Mr. Chambers, The Piper of Dundee.
- CLXXXIX. Both words and music suggested by a much older song. The tune I have printed is diffuse, and, as a whole, incoherent; but individual phrases—the last for instance—are very beautiful.
- CXCI. Having regard to the difficulty of developing mere melody to this length, this is one of the best tunes, pure and simple, with which I am acquainted. On the "rare sheet," from which Mr. Chambers has taken his copy, the air is said to have been "composed for the flageolet, by the late Charles Sharpe, of Hod-dam, Esq. when seven years old!" It is difficult to

- no. conceive any kind or quantity of evidence that would make this statement credible. Are there any other compositions extant attributed to this maestro, of the same, or even of later, date?
- CXCV. There is considerable variety in the published copies of this tune. Choice in this case is only to be guided by internal evidence.
- CXCVIII. No tune in existence has been presented in so many and such very various shapes as this. There is more than one Scottish or Anglo-Scottish version, another by Moore, besides the above, which Bunting believed to be the original. It is unfortunate that one of the first and worst of these varieties should have been adopted as the motif of an opera likely to enjoy a long term of popular favour, Boieldieu's Dame Blanche.
- CCI. There is much dignity, as well as grace, especially in the opening of this tune.
- CCII. The 9th and 10th bars are "an insertion" by Moore. By omitting these bodily, the reader will be able to compare the original tune with the interpolated version, printed above for the sake of the words, which are well worthy of a greater sacrifice to historical accuracy.
- CCIV. Moore has slightly altered this tune—why, it would be hard to say. The same remark might often be made, and the same question as often asked.
- CCV. Mr. Chappell has called attention to the resemblance which this tune, and even its original words, bear to the celebrated English canon, Sumer is y-comin in. (See Pop. Mus. of the Olden Times, v. i. p. 23.)
- CCVII. The tither Morn, in the Scottish Minstrel, is nearly identical with this.
- CCIX. There is a song, based on the old one, which has given its name to this tune, by Burns (See Thomson's Collection, vol. i. p. 21), which contains two of his best lines—
 "The wan moon is setting behind the white wave,
 And time is setting with me, oh!"
 The tune is, however, probably Irish, and is never likely again to be sung to other words than Moore's.
- CCXII. Altered in the Irish Melodies by the repetition of several phrases—as "echoes."
- CCXIII. Moore has written a song, They came from a Land beyond the Sea, to this tune—of which he has altered the first phrase, not at all for the better.
- CCXV. No tune has suffered from Moore's handling more severely and unaccountably than this.
- CCXVI. Moore has altered almost every phrase of this tune, and added four bars to it.
- CCXVII. Intact—even in the Irish Melodies! But a single touch would have annihilated a thing so delicate, so coherent, so refined.

- NO.
 CCXVIII. Only altered from the original by repetition of certain phrases.
- CCXIX. The plan of this tune is uncommon,—the first strain being twice repeated, and each time with a difference, which, without injury to its unity, prevents its great length from being felt.
- CCXX. Moore's Silence is on our festal Halls is to this tune.
- CCXXI. I suspect this tune to be Welsh. Bunting adopts it without remark. But all is fish that comes into a national collector's net.
- CCXXII. A tune altogether unworthy of the words.
- CCXXV. Moore has substituted an additional close (the original having already three) for the fine sustained repetitions at the line
 "Led the red-branch knights to danger."
- CCXXVI. A magnificent melody, and certainly not an old one. This tune appears in Thomson's Collection of Scottish Songs, without note or comment. On internal evidence I have placed it here.
- CCXXVII. In its present shape this tune has taken too strong a hold on public favour to bear "restoration," even were restoration to be desired. Like No. CXCVIII. it forms the motif of a popular opera, Flotow's Martha.
- CCXXX. In the 7th tone, transposed a third lower.
- CCXXXIII. Slightly altered by Moore.
- CCXXXIV. Like many of Moore's songs this has a double meaning, and refers to the country, as well as to the mistress, of the singer.
- CCXXXV. A melody which has inspired several lyrics besides the above.
- CCXXXVII. I have followed the copy in Thomson's Collection, from which Moore's differs at the words, "Which near our planet smiling came."
- CCXL. See note to CCXXXIV.
- CCXLIII. Some excuse may be made for Moore's alterations in the first phrase of this air, but the mutilation of the second is unpardonable.
- CCXLV. Not one phrase of this tune is intact in the Irish Melodies.
- CCL. "This melody was brought into notice by the words, 'Of noble race was Shenkin,' adapted to it by Tom Durfey, in his play of the 'Richmond Heiress,' A.D. 1693." (Thomas's Welsh Melodies.)
- CCLI. Hitherto chiefly known in connexion with Mrs. Opie's song, Poor Mary Anne.
- CCLIV. Supposed to be identical with No. XLVIII. Cease your funning.

INDEX OF FIRST LINES.

A chieftain to the highlands bound	286
A Highland lad my love was born	246
Ah ! the syghes that come fro' my heart	3
All in a garden green	124
All in the Downs the fleet was moored	56
An' O ! my Eppie	197
And a' that e'er my Jenny had	181
And are ye sure the news is true ?	202
And Charlie is my darling	236
And doth not a meeting like this make amends	306
And O for ane and twenty, Tam !	233
And will he not come again ?	25
A North-country lass up to London did pass	38
A poor beggar's daughter did dwell on a greene	15
Arise from thy slumbers, O fairest of maids	263
As down in the meadows I chanc'd for to pass	84
As I came thro' Sandgate	90
As I walk'd forth one summer's day	131
At a Maypole down in Kent	91
At morning sun out o'er the lea	237
At setting day, and rising morn	151
At the mid hour of night, when stars are weeping, I fly	257
Avenging and bright fall the swift sword of Erin	295
Awa, whigs, awa !	241
Baloo loo lammy, now baloo, my dear	215
Begone, dull Care ! I prythee begone from me !	61
Behind yon hills where Lugar flows	166
Blow thy horn, hunter	1
Bonie lassie, will ye go	242
Branch of the sweet and early rose	285
Braw, braw lads on Yarrow braes	150
Care, thou canker of our joys	103
Cease, rude Boreas, blustering railer	118
Cease your funning	63
Charm'd by the lustre of thine eyes	261
Cold's the wind, and wet's the rain	30
Come boat me o'er, come row me o'er	234
Come cheer up, my lads, 'tis to glory we steer	78
Come, follow, follow me	128
Come, live with me, and be my love	16

Come sweet lass	54
Come, ye young men, come along	126
Come you not from Newcastle?	75
Comin' thro' the craigs of Kyle	228
Concinamus O Sodales!	50
Contented wi' little, and canty wi' mair	154
Dance to your daddy, my bonny lady.	201
Dear Harp of my Country! in darkness I found thee	260
Deck the hall with boughs of holly	325
Down yonder green valley where streamlets meander	334
Drink to me only with thine eyes	47
Duncan Gray came here to woo	222
Early one morning, just as the sun was rising	88
Erin, the tear and the smile in thine eyes	256
Fair Hebe I left, with a cautious design	82
Fair Rosalind, in woeful wise	101
Farewell to Lochaber, farewell to my Jean	164
Fill, fill the bright mead-cup, and let it go round	332
Fly not yet, 'tis just the hour	262
From thee, Eliza, I must go	214
From the white blossom'd sloe my dear Chloe requested	141
Full high in Killbride is the grass seen to wave	272
Gather ye rosebuds while ye may	117
Gin living worth could win my heart	253
Give ear to me, both high and low	62
Go from my window, Love, go	107
God save our noble Queen!	149
Golden slumbers kiss your eyes	99
Good morrow, 'tis St. Valentine's day.	11
Has sorrow thy young days shaded	322
Hear me, ye nymphs, and ev'ry swain	170
Hee balow, my sweet wee Donald	251
Here awa, there awa, wandering Willie	155
Here's a health unto his Majesty	130
Here's a health to the Queen, and a lasting peace	60
Here, a sheer hulk, lies poor Tom Bowling	106
Here's to the maiden of bashful fifteen	134
Hey! the dusty miller	209
How happy could I be with either	49
How lang and dreary is the night	156
How oft has the Benshee cried	301
How stands the glass around?	70
How should I your true love know	27
How sweet the answer Echo makes	273
I am a brisk and sprightly lad	112
I am in truth	98
If thou'lt be mine, the treasures of air	266

I gaed a waefu' gate yestreen	157
I hear the trumpet sounding	328
I lothe that I did love	19
I'm lonesome since I cross'd the hill	76
I'm wearing awa', Jean	179
In good King Charles's golden days	64
In ringlets curl'd thy tresses flow	284
In Scarlet Town, where I was born	42
In the merry month of May.	24
I sow'd the seeds of love	40
Is there, for honest poverty	216
I tell thee, Dick, where I have been	132
It was a lover and his lass	26
It was a maid of my country.	4
It was the frog in the well	10
I've a secret to tell thee, but hush ! not here	296
I've seen the smiling of Fortune beguiling	248
I wish I were where Helen lies	235
Jog on, jog on the foot-path way	22
John Anderson my jo, John	152
Joy upon thy bright cheek dances	341
Let Erin remember the days of old	291
Let us take the road	53
Life and its follies are fading away	324
Long ere the morn	28
Loud roars the dreadful thunder	114
Martin said to his man	8
My daddy is a cunke'd carle	230
My heart is breaking, dear Tittie	168
My Lady's gown there's gares upon't	252
My lodging it is on the cold ground	86
My love built me a bonnie bower	224
My love she's but a lassie yet	239
My man Thomas	115
My massa and my misses have both gone away	346
My sorrow, deep sorrow, incessant returning	292
Nay, tell me not, Dear, that the goblet drowns	280
Now, O now I needs must part	14
O banquet not in those shining bowers	258
Of all the girls that are so smart	58
Oh ! breathe not his name—let it sleep in the shade	279
Oh ! could we do with this world of ours	146
Oh ! dear ! what can the matter be ?	105
Oh, where ! and Oh, where ! is your Highland laddie gone ?	89
O down in Alabama	350
O hark ye, lads, and I will tell ye	238
O, lassie, I maun lo'e thee	225
O Logie o' Buchan, O Logie, the Laird	196

O London is a fine town	69
O lov'd maid of Broka, each fair one excelling	268
O Mary, at thy window be	226
O mistress mine, where are you roaming ?	23
One day as I, in merry mood	342
On Richmond hill there lives a lass	136
O'Rourke's noble fare will ne'er be forgot	310
O send Lewie Gordon hame	232
O slumber my darling, thy sire is a knight	113
O Spring's a pleasant time	194
O stay, sweet warbling wood-lark, stay	195
O the days are gone when beauty bright	264
O, the ewe-buchtin's bonie, baith e'ning and morn	250
O the sight entrancing	282
O this is no my ain lassie	240
Our oats they are hoed, and our barley's reap'd	31
Over the mountains, and over the inoor	108
Over the mountains, and over the waves	34
O waly, waly up the bank	220
O was I to blame to love him !	161
Oh ! well do I remember, 'twas in the month of May	330
O what a plague is love	18
O where's the slave so lowly	278
O weel may the boatie row	204
O were my love yon lilac fair	158
O wise and valiant Willy	172
Pastime with good company	2
Peaceful slumbering on the ocean	135
Phillis, talk no more of passion	137
Pray, Goody, please to moderate the rancour of your tongue	93
Raise on high a royal lay	340
Rich and rare were the gems she wore	265
Rise, rise thou merry lark	336
Roy's wife of Aldivalloch	160
Sail on, sail on, thou fearless bark	276
